Capone for President
No Trousers for Gandhi
A World Sugar Price
Free Food Is Old

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE NEW YORK fish dealers have set of racketeers for protection from thieves and various gangsters, and say they like the system. They pay for racketeer protection, and they get it. They are better off than they were before, only paying taxes for government protection.

This opens many possibilities, even a "Capone for President" possibility. We might have our model racketeer Condottiere, as Venice had her Colleoni. Instead of public officials that accept places from the racketeers' and bootleggers' pay roll, why not hire the racketeers direct, and do the best we can under our new kind of civilization?

THE LATEST news about the Indian leader, Gandhi, might have added a chapter to Carlyle's "Sartor esartus." Going to London to talk to the British powers, he will wear trousers, which he never wears in India. He may even shave off his "pigtail," a long tuft of hair worn in obedience to the Hindu religion, which teaches that it may be used by friends to pull the dead man out of hell.

However, Gandhi says he will positively not wear a stiff shirt, and the king won't see him wearing silk knee breeches. He says: "I am ugly enough without such foppery."

We all have our ideas about how to dress. When Sir Augustus Harris, boss of London's Drury Lane theater, asked George Bernard Shaw, then a young man, to come to the opera in evening clothes, Shaw took off his suit of brown flannel and put on a dress suit, but wore his brown flannel Jaeger shirt with the dress suit.

Harris said: "Please go back to the Jaeger ensemble. I like it better."

AT A CONFERENCE in Paris, following an all-night session, seven nations agreed on uniform world price for sugar. Beet and cane growers are included in the arrangement.

The world would be benfitted if so great an industry were stabilized on a fair basis. Fortunately for the stabilizers, Russia is not yet important as a factor in sugar production, but her potential beet sugar territory is great.

WHEN PROSPERITY and jobs are plentiful what is commonly called "radicalism" goes to sleep. Lowered wages and many idle bring radicalism back to waking activity.

In New York the I. W. W. demand "free food." It is cheaper and safer, temporarily, to give free food than not to give it, to say nothing of the teachings of Christianity by which we are supposed to be influenced.

But free food as a permanent institution would be dangerous. The Romans demanded it, and got it, and you know what happened there.

A little more life and hope in Wall street yesterday. The markets were "quietly cheerful." Unfilled orders of the big steel company increased 30,136 tons in March, whereas they decreased 167,157 in February.

Railroad stocks were feeling better.

Uncle Sam's stock of gold last Wednesday totaled $4,706,000,000, $9,000,000 higher than ever before. That's doing well when you consider that the world's total monetary gold supply is less than $11,000,000,000.

OHIO ASSEMBLY ENACTS ONLY 150 NEW BILLS

State Legislature Adjourns Stormy 14-Week Session at 4:30 A. M. Today.

TO RECONVENE IN MONTH

Adoption of New System of Taxation Scheduled for Next Meeting.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 11—The Ohio general assembly which ended its regular session at 4:30 a. m. today after being in session for 14 weeks passed approximately 150 bills, the fewest in many years.

After a month's recess the session will again convene to enact a new taxation system based upon a classification tax amendment to the constitution adopted in November 1929, and which became effective January 1, this year. At the recess session, the assembly also will have to pass the biennial budget and consider a few bills based upon recommendations of special committees.

All Bills Dead

All bills pending, whether on the calendars of the two houses, or still before committees, were indefinitely postponed when the assembly recessed this morning and cannot be revived when the assembly reconvenes, May 11. This does not apply, however, to taxation, and appropriation bills and those introduced by the special committees.

Of the approximate 150 bills en-

EAKER LANDS IN WICHITA

Equals Time of Hawks, Record Holder, in First Hop of New York Dash.

GOAL FOR TRIP 10 HOURS

Expected To Make Return Dash If Weather Conditions Permit.

By The Associated Press

WICHITA, Kans., April 11—Captain Ira C. Eaker, army test pilot, landed here at 12:43 a .m., Marion time, today on his transcontinental speed flight from Burbank, Calif., to New York.

His flying time was six hours, three minutes, 20 seconds. Before the take-off on the Pacific coast he said he expected to reach Wichita in about five hours.

An airport crew quickly refuelled his ship for the last stage of the dash to New York.

On the hop to Wichita, Captain Eaker virtually equalled the time of Captain Frank Hawks, holder of the west-east transcontinental flight record. Hawks' time to Wichita was 6:04:11 last August 13, when he flew from Glendale, Calif., to Curtiss field, New York, in 12:25:03.

Three hundred and fifty gallons of gasoline had been pumped into the wing tanks of Eaker's Lockheed Altair monoplane, and the engine had been warmed up for several hours, before leaving Burbank, Calif., at 6:30 a. m., Marion time.

If Capt. Eaker reaches New York safely, he probably will undertake an immediate return flight he indicated.

"I will be right back," he said as he scanned weather forecasts. Capt. Eaker hoped to reach New York City by 5:30 p. m.

The only place he planned to stop was Wichita, Kans., where 30 gallons of fuel were ready for his plane.

Capt. Eaker's plane was said to be capable of 240 miles an hour. Its retractable landing gear was said to add approximately 20 miles an hour to its speed.

The army pilot planned to gain a 20,000 foot altitude in the hope of finding a tail wind. Oxygen equipment was added to his ship. He believed he would need it if flying above 16,000 feet for any length of time.

World War Vet Held in Connection with Death

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 11—A World war veteran, brother of a Cleveland policeman, was in custody of county authorities here today as a suspect in the murder of George Klebowski, 34, whose lifeless body was found in the ruins of a Lake shore cottage which burned to the ground yesterday.

The man was apprehended after it was learned he allegedly sustained several knife wounds during an argument with Klebowski Thursday night at the cottage. A second man was held as a material witness in the case.

WOMEN GIVE VIEWS ON DRY QUESTION

"Good Example" and Education Would Aid Prohibition, They Say.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 11—A nationwide educational campaign, fortified by "good example in the home," was named today by an unofficial law enforcement commission of 22 women as their chief recommendation for improving the present prohibition situation.

This was the conclusion of a composite prohibition report, presented yesterday to President Hoover and described as a "woman's postscript" to the Wickersham study.

In one of the 22 individual studies from which the consensus was drawn, Mrs. Clement L. Shaver, wife of the former chairman of the Democratic national committee, urged women to forget they were Democrats or Republicans and vote only "to overthrow the liquor traffic." She said President Hoover was in a "strong position" because of his prohibition stand.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Pennsylvania governor, conceded enforcement was "a tough nut to crack," adding that if the drys did not want it enough to fight for it the amendment "might just as well be repealed."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, woman suffrage leader, said she had never observed a liquor law that was enforced, but that prohibition was "a better law and better enforced," than any system she had seen.

Mrs. Irving Fisher, wife of the Yale university economist, quoted her husband that prohibition had "raised productivity by at least three billion dollars a year."

Safer Here

Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army used statistics to suggest the conclusion that a man "has a better chance of life in this country with her bandits than in Britain with her brewers."

"We believe," said the composite statement, "that the report of the

LISBON UNDER MILITARY RULE

Portuguese Government Acts To Suppress Rebellion in Possessions.

EXEDITIONARY FORCE OUT

Fayal Island Believed Solidly in Hands of Revolutionists.

By The Associated Press

LISBON, Portugal, April 11—Lisbon awoke today to find itself in the iron grip of the military. During the night heavy details of soldiers were posted in all public squares and elsewhere and today armored cars patrolled the streets.

Unconfirmed reports said that many persons had been arrested in a new effort to prevent the revolt, which has been successful in Madeira and the Azores, from spreading to the mainland.

A decree establishing a blockade and closing the ports of the islands of Sao Miguel and Terceira in the Azores was published today by the Portuguese government.

The decree was the first official admission that the revolt which began a week ago at Funchal, Madeira, had spread to the other eastern Atlantic archipelago owned by Portugal.

The principal city in Sao Miguel, largest of the Azores, is Ponta Delgada, while Angra Do Heroismo, capital of the Azores, is the principal city on Terceira island. The garrisons of both places were severing relations with the home government.

The expeditionary force sent to suppress the rebellion at Funchal arrived yesterday at Porto Santo, one of the islands of the Madeira group and about 26 miles north of Madeira, on which Funchal is located. They are establishing themselves there for the campaign against Funchal.

Colonel Noronha, commanding officer of the garrison on the island of Fayal, Azores, has reported to the government that he observed trenches being dug at places around Funchal and 15 and 8.5 centimeter guns being mounted on the hillsides about the city early this week. He said he believed the island to be almost impregnable.

FIRE DAMAGE HEAVY

Toledo Blaze Cost Estimated at More Than $100,000.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., April 11—Fire, starting in the warehouse of a biscuit company here, spread into an adjoining building, causing damage estimated at $100,000 early today.

Firemen thought they had the fire in the bakery company plant under control when it broke through the adjoining structure and fed upon a big supply of drugs and turpentine. The drug specialties company, the Star Transfer & Storage company and the Toledo Flag & Decorating company shared in the loss with the Loose-Wiles concern. An overheated furnace was blamed.

ROCHESTER, Ind., April 11—Everybody concerned was happier today about the ten cent pair of garters a woman stole from Lou Shoemaker, a merchant, fifty years ago.

Shoemaker got a letter from a woman in a western state, whose name he did not reveal, announcing that she had stolen the garters from the store he used to run in Kewanna, Iowa, and wanted to make amends. She inclosed a dime in payment.

"I've been converted," the woman wrote. Shoemaker couldn't remember anything about it, but pocketed the dime.

REDISTRICTING BILL KILLED

Legislature Fails To Provide for Election of Two New Congressman.

HAD APPROVAL OF HOUSE

Measure Dies as Result of Proposed Amendment in Senate.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 11—Ohio will have to elect her two additional congressmen from the state at large as a result of the general assembly's failure to enact a redistricting bill. The state will be entitled to 24 congressmen at the next election.

The house of representatives passed a redistricting bill, sponsored by Representative B. L. Creesy, Republican of Ashtabula county, but it failed in the senate last night by being consigned to committee after it had been amended in violation of the federal constitution. It cannot be revived again this session.

The senate previously had refused to pass a redistricting measure which had been prepared by a special committee of its members and approved by the regular elections committee.

When the Creesy bill was taken up for passage in the senate early this morning, several amendments changing the districts as established by the house were voted.

Finally, Senator T. E. Williams, Democrat of Williams county, proposed an amendment that would have placed Tuscarawas county, the home of Senator Walter G. Nickels, Republican, and located in the eastern section of the state, into his own district, located in the western part of the state. The amendment was adopted.

Inasmuch as this amendment placed Tuscarawas county into a district not contiguous with it, the federal constitution was violated, and upon motion of Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican of Cincinnati, the bill was sent to the elections committee for a long sleep.

PATROLMEN RESCUE 18 FROM FIRE TRAP

Flames Follow Explosion in Detroit Business Room; Five Stores Damaged.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 11—Eighteen persons, trapped in upper floors by fire that followed an explosion in a restaurant in Upper Twelfth street at 4 a. m. today were carried to safety by two patrolmen.

The explosion, in a restaurant that had been closed for several days, destroyed or damaged five stores in a two-story block at 8566 Twelfth street.

When the patrolmen reached the scene they found the rear of the restaurant and its side wall blown out and the front in flames. Making their way up a burning rear stairway, they carried 11 children and seven adults from the second floor.

The proprietor of the restaurant, Benjamin Fine, his brother, Abe Fine, and a former partner are to be questioned by the arson squad.

Police said the restaurant had been closed since Benjamin Fine was shot in an argument recently with a former partner, Michael Lerner.

LONGWORTH BODY STARTS LAST TRIP

The casket bearing the body of the late Nicholas Longworth is shown above as it was being placed aboard a train for Cincinnati at Aiken, S. C., where the former speaker of the house of representatives died Monday.

LONGWORTH RITES HELD IN CINCINNATI

High Government Officials Present at Final Services for Departed Speaker.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., April 11—Speaker Nicholas Longworth was buried today in Spring Grove cemetery, the resting place of his forebears. No words of eulogy were spoken over his body and he was committed to the earth with only the simple ritual used by the Episcopal church.

Pay Silent Tribute

But a great, silent tribute was paid to the fallen statesman by men in whose circles he moved and by townspeople who revered him.

President Hoover came with an official party to do his homage. A large delegation from congress, where Mr. Longworth served for more than 20 years, came for the last meeting with their dead speaker.

They went with Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the widow, to Christ Episcopal church where the Rt. Rev. Henry Wise Hobson, bishop coadjutor of the Diocese of Southern Ohio pronounced the brief prayers in the ritual of the dead. And then to Spring Grove cemetery to leave Mr. Longworth in his last sleep.

Men and women high in public affairs called at the big "Rookwood" estate of the Longworths this morning to extend their sympathies to the bereaved widow when she had returned with the body by special train from Aiken, S. C., where Mr. Longworth died of pneumonia two days ago.

Flowers Bank Home

The interior of the home was banked high with the floral tributes of the speaker's many friends. And inside Christ church, which had seating capacity for only 750 persons the aisles, from altar to door were laden with flowers.

Paulina, the six year old daughter of the Longworths learned for the first time of the death of her distinguished father when they brought him home today.

She was in school here and the

FOUR MEN CAUGHT LOOTING WAREHOUSE

City and County Officials Hold Four; To File Charges Today.

After interrupting a burglary last night at the J. D. Wise & Son warehouse on Barnhart street, city and county authorities today are holding four men under arrest and are in possession of a quantity of recovered loot.

The burglars had loaded a part of the loot in a Nash coupe, with officials looking on, before they were arrested. Forty-eight pounds of coffee, a case of canned milk, a case of salmon, a case of soap and a sack of potatoes, all valued at $65, had been loaded before officials surprised the men.

Two men were captured at the scene of the burglary and are being held for investigation. They are Herbert Rothgang, 39, of 283 Rose avenue, and Daniel Sweringer, of 285 Rose avenue. One or more others escaped. Louis Rothgang, 29, of 283 Rose avenue, and William Spith of Marion R. F. D No. 2 were arrested later as suspects.

Formal charges probably will be preferred against the men in municipal court late today.

SPEAKS AT MEETING

Ohio State Professor Talks on Home Life at Conference.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 11—Addressing a sectional meeting of the Ohio state educational conference here today, Prof. Charles S. Berry, of Ohio State university said that easy divorce, smaller families and shifting of the responsibility of child-rearing increasingly to the community, may mean a more intelligent appreciation of the responsibilities of parenthood.

"That the community permits the home to be broken up by divorce does not indicate necessarily that it lightly regards the home," he said. "It means rather that the community considers it better for the child to live with only one parent than to live in an unhappy home."

It Was a Brilliant Idea—but Not for Purchaser

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 11—When Mrs. Joseph Lepic first saw the operated machine, it worked marvelously well, she told police, turning $5 bills out as fast as its operators would feed it green paper.

But when she took it home to Clinton, Ind., she found that all of its magic powers had vanished, she said, in asking Chicago police to find the two men who accepted the $1000 she withdrew from her bank to pay for the contraption. She reported that the demonstration which sold her on the idea was given in a Terre Haute, Ind., hotel.

ELECTION MAY DEADLOCK VOTE

Party Power of Next House Hinges on Successor to Longworth.

MARGIN NOW ONE VOTE

Democratic Victory in Special Poll Will Divide Power Evenly.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, April 11—A battle of deep and unusual significance will be waged between the Republicans and the Democrats to elect a congressman to succeed the late speaker, "Nick" Longworth.

National organizations of both parties are preparing to throw all their resources into the contest, for on the outcome of the special election which Gov. George White will call this autumn probably depends partisan control of the house of representatives of the seventy-second congress. The plans are already in process of formation and will mature as soon as a decent interval elapses after the burial of the late speaker in Cincinnati today.

Outcome Significant

Seldom in the political history of the country has so much depended upon the outcome of a single congressional fight as will depend upon the verdict of the voters in Ohio's first district, which the genial, popular "Nick" represented in congress for 26 years.

A Republican victory will allow the Republicans to retain their narrow majority of a single vote in the new house. A Democratic victory will exactly balance the scales between the two parties with 217 seats each, and leave the balance of power, theoretically at least, in the hands of a youthful Minnesotan, Paul Kvale, who alone in the new house bears the label of the Farmer-Labor party.

Will R. Wood of Indiana, when reminded that Longworth, with all the prestige of the speakership and his 26 years of service in the district, only managed to squeeze through last fall with a majority of 3,500, against a normal Republican majority of nearly 10 times that, said:

Conditions Cited

"Well, there were conditions last fall that may not obtain now. I think people were inclined then to blame the administration and the Republicans generally for business conditions. They have learned differently now. They know now that neither President Hoover nor the Republican party is to blame for conditions. They realize we are

REPUTED WEALTH OF VIVIAN GORDON MYTH

Estate of Murdered "Broadway Butterfly" Far Less Than Expected.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 11—The few knicknacks which she left behind in her apartment on the night she was killed, their value not exceeding $200, form the entire estate of Vivian Gordon, a Broadway figure in connection with whose death five men have been arrested.

In the days when things were "breaking" for her, Vivian Gordon was popularly supposed to have accumulated $100,000 through transactions, which police said, included blackmail. Even at the time of her death six weeks ago it was gossipped that she had $75,000.

The shrinkage of her fortune was revealed when the public administrator appeared in surrogate court to ask for letters of administration. She left no real property.

Harry Stein, arrested on suspicion of homicide in the case, and four other men remained in custody today while police continued their search for a sixth man. It was intimated that the man now sought is the one who drove the car from which Miss Gordon's body was thrown into Van Cortlandt park on the night of February 28.

SONNANSTINE ACTS AS 90-DAY PERIOD ENDS

Safety Director Reveals He Has Given Chief Opportunity To Resign.

MOVE MAY BRING BATTLE

Civil Service Expected To Get Report on Probation Term Today.

Midnight will bring to a close the 90-day probationary tenure of office of Police Chief William E. Marks.

With the end of the period of probation near at hand, indications of a legal battle over Chief Marks' position became apparent today.

One of the most convincing indications that trouble may develop over the question of whether Chief Marks will continue to hold his position came late yesterday when it was revealed the chief had been given an opportunity to resign.

This was revealed both by Safety Director T. E. Sonnanstine, who gave Chief Marks the opportunity of resigning, and Chief Marks himself, who affirmed the report and announced he will not voluntarily give up the job.

Report Due Today

A detailed report of the chief's service in office during the 90-day period probably will be filed with the civil service commission today, Mayor L. Don Jones, who appointed Chief Marks Jan 12, announced last night. This report is required by law, regardless of whether an ouster move is in sight.

Mayor Jones has the right to append a recommendation as to whether the office has been satisfactorily filled during the probationary period. Whether such a recommendation will be made, or what it may say would not be revealed by Mayor Jones last night.

Commission Holds Power

According to city officials, the civil service commission, after considering the report and the recommendation, can either instate Chief Marks as permanent chief or remove him.

As head of the safety department, of which the police department is a part, Director Sonnanstine has no more access to formal charges against Chief Marks during the probationary period or at the close of the period than he would have against any other fully qualified officer, officials say.

Chief Marks' statement today was: "I've done my duty as I've seen it. My record is open for inspection."

SLAYER OF POTTER GETS LIFE IN PRISON

Judge Sentences Hymie Martin After Refusing To Grant New Trial.

By International News Service.

CLEVELAND, April 11—"Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, self-admitted rum-runner, today was sentenced to life imprisonment in Ohio penitentiary without hope of pardon for the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter.

Sentence was pronounced by Criminal Judge Walter McMahon, who overruled a motion for a new trial before passing the sentence on Martin.

Martin smiled faintly as the court pronounced the sentence and then went into conference with his attorney, William E. Minshall.

Shortly before sentencing, Judge McMahon overruled a motion for a new trial without argument either by Minshall or by Assistant Prosecutor P. L. A. Lodge.

Minshall yesterday asked the judge to delay the hearing on the motion, and when the judge refused, Minshall said he would "let it go by default" and take the case to the appellate court.

Minshall's fight for a new trial will rest on the claim that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and that Judge McMahon erred in advising the jury during its deliberations, to "let the majority decide." Before this advice was given, several of the jurors had been holding out for acquittal.

The sentencing today came less than two weeks after Martin was convicted, and was only three months and eight days since Potter was slain, Feb. 3.

Probate Judge Oscar Gast will play a prominent part in the district welfare conferenec to be held in the St. Johns Reformed church at Bucyrus next Tuesday, the program for the affair reveals.

Judge Gast and a number of persons interested in child welfare work are expected to attend from Marion. The district includes, Marion, Crawford, Morrow, Richland and Seneca counties.

Discussions of juvenile courts, children's homes, child training and social investigation as well as the problem encountered in the distribution of relief will feature the program of the conference

Chairman for Session

Judge Gast will be chairman of the morning session of the conference. He urges everyone interested in the topics to be discussed to attend the meeting, which will be similar to a welfare meeting held in Marion last year.

Stockton Raymond, secretary of the Franklin county council of social agencies and director of the Columbus Community Fund, has been secured as the leader of a special discussion on relief problems. For many years, Raymond was secretary of the Boston Family Welfare Society and has had wide experience in family relief work. Perry Denune of the faculty of Ohio State university, will discuss existing economic conditions.

Judge Henry J. Robison of the Portage county juvenile court, will lead the discussion on juvenile courts. Dr. Charles S. Berry of Ohio State university will lead the discussion on child training, and Mrs. Harry Downs, matron of the Richland County Children's Home will be in charge of the children's home topic. John McSweeney, director of the state department of public welfare, will address the gathering at a luncheon at 12:15 p m. He will discuss cooperation of local and state agencies in meeting current social problems.

BOARD SELLS BONDS FOR POOR RELIEF

Issue Totals $43,000; State Teachers' Fund Is Buyer.

The county has sold $43,000 worth of relief bonds to the Teachers' Retirement Fund, officials announced today. The bonds were issued under provisions of the Pringle-Roberts bill passed by the legislature to enable counties and cities to issue bonds for money needed for poor relief purposes.

Transcript of the bonds is now in the hands of the attorney general for approval. Legal procedure probably will be taken care of early next week and the money will be made available immediately.

The bonds draw 4½ per cent interest and carry a premium of $136. They will mature at the rate of $3,500 each March 1 and Sept. 1 until 1937 when the semi-annual payments will increase to $4.000. At the end of 1937, the bonds will have matured.

THOMAS ASKS TAXPAYERS' AID

Use of Assessors in County Will Relieve Rush in Auditor's Office.

To eliminate confusion in the county auditor's office and to guarantee better service to taxpayers throughout the county, County Auditor Earl E Thomas today urged all persons required to make individual listings of personal property for taxation to file these lists with the nearest assessor

There are nine assessors in the county, with whom taxpayers may file returns. Each year a large number of persons came to the office of the county auditor to file these returns rather than go to the nearest assessor. As Auditor Thomas must receive the blanks of all persons listing in the city, as well as continue other work in the office, confusion will result if a large number of persons from the county file returns in the auditor's office.

Assessors will be on the job Monday, as all of them have received their supplies, Auditor Thomas said today. Listing blanks were mailed to 10,084 persons in the city and county today than in any other car in Buick's field?

The nine assessors in the county include John Markey of LaRue, W. B. Kellogg of Caledonia, Phil Ruehrmund of Richland township, Lawrence Young of Morral, Harry Lauer of Prospect, O. S Anthony of Waldo, Vern Day of Meeker, M A. Porter of Green Camp and Harvey W. Lust of Pleasant township

Over 1,500,000* Buicks are in active service today—750,000 more than the second car in its price range.

Moreover, so satisfactory are these Buick cars that 88% of all Buick owners buy Buicks again and again.

Finally, the outstanding quality which has made these two great records possible is now winning for Buick MORE THAN 50 OUT OF EVERY 100 SALES OF THE 14 EIGHTS IN BUICK'S PRICE CLASS

Owing to their popularity, the present models of 1931 Buick Straight Eights will be continued throughout the coming summer and fall. Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing motor car values.

35 TEAMS ASK POSTS IN LEAGUES HERE

RECREATION BALL IS ASSURED USUAL FOUR EIGHT-CLUB CIRCUITS

Three of Present Entries Must Be Eliminated by City Commission.

THIRTY-FIVE teams filed entries with the Marion recreation baseball commission before the deadline yesterday at 6 p. m. Local recreation ball is thus assured of four leagues of eight teams each for competition here during the coming season. Inasmuch as only 32 teams can be accommodated in the quartet of circuits three of the entries will be rejected by the commission.

Of the 32 teams which competed here last summer 29 are again entered for play this season. Three of last year's competitors, The Marion Star, Osgood Mfg. Co. and the Steam Shovel Athletic association withdrew this year due to a dearth of players.

Six New Teams

Six organizations, new to recreation ball here are entered for play. They are Augenstein A. C., Honey Krust A. C., Greenwood Evangelical Sunday school, Wesley M. E. No. 2, Silk Mills, and Ohio Fuel Gas company. Which three of these teams will be allowed to compete this year is not certain yet but it is probable that two of them will be the Silk Mills and Ohio Fuel Gas company. The third is not definate.

The Sunday school No. 1 league will be made up this year of the same eight teams as composed the circuit last season with the exception of a double shift which brings Lee street Presbyterians from No. 2 league into No. 1 and drops Central Christians from No. 1 into No. 2 loop. This change is the result of the Christians finishing last in No. 1 league and the Lee Street nine winning the championship of the second circuit. According to the rules of city recreation ball here this change is made annually.

No. 1 League Members

Teams which will compete in the No. 1 league are Calvary Evangelical, Epworth Juniors, Epworth Seniors, Epworth No. 1, Trinity Baptist, St. Mary, Lee Street Presbyterians and Lutheran.

No. 2 Sunday school circuit this year will have as its members Forest Lawn, Central Christian No. 1, Central Christian No. 2, Wesley M. E., United Brethren, St. Paul Lutheran, First Reformed and First Presbyterian.

Teams which are entered this year that played last season in the Industrial league are Erie Traffic Club (Erie Yardmen last year), Erie Roundhouse, Fairfield Engineering Co., Chesapeake & Ohio R. R., Huber Mfg. Co., Marion Steam Shovel club, and C., D. & M. The Osgood S. S. Co. is not entered.

Commercial league teams of last year who are again entered for this season are Kappa Alpha Phi, Knights of Pythias, Company B, O. N. G., General Excavator, Serv-U-Wel Stores, and Prospect Firemen. The Marion Star and Steam Shovel A. A. are not entered.

The city commission will meet next Wednesday night for the purpose of naming the three new teams which will be allowed to compete this season.

CALVARY SKEDS DRILL

Calvary Evangelical Sunday school recreation ball club, winner of Sunday school League No. 1 last season will hold its first practice of the year Tuesday at 6 p. m., on the Steam Shovel diamond. Calvary will practice each Tuesday and Friday evening until the opening of the playing season on May 11.

JUNIORS TO PRACTICE

The Epworth Juniors' recreation ball team will practice Monday at 6 p. m. on the McKinley Park diamond. It will be the first practice of the season for the Methodist team, piloted by Jim Lingo. The Juniors will practice at regular intervals until the opening of the season on May 11.

PRESIDENT HOOVER TO HURL FIRST BALL AS WASHINGTON OPENS SEASON ON TUESDAY

Connie Mack's Athletics To Furnish Opposition for Johnson's Protges.

WASHINGTON — Herbert Hoover, who has a powerful right arm but is a trifle wild, will pitch the first ball when Walter Johnson's pennant-aspiring Senators start their 1931 drive to push the Athletics from the top of the American league.

The president, members of his cabinet, Latin-American diplomats and thousands of capital fans, who have visions of a league—perhaps a world—championship, will see Johnson's seasoned Musketeers and "The Mighty Men of Mack," clash in the season's opener here April 14.

From a strictly baseball standpoint, the game between the world's champion Philadelphia team and the only club that gave it a fight last season for the American league flag should be a diamond "natural." The presence of the "Big Train" and Connie Mack, two of baseball's greatest figures, will give additional interest.

A colorful setting with an international flavor will be provided by Pan-American day ceremonies in the ball yard. Above the greensward of center field the flags of the 21 nations of the Pan-American Union will be raised, one at a time.

As each goes up a salute will be fired and a strain of the national anthem of the country represented will be played by the Army band. Secretary of State Stimson, Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, and Manager Johnson will lead a procession of Latin-American representatives and the players of both clubs. The American presidential salute of 21 guns will be fired and then the president will throw out the first ball.

In his first opener two years ago, the president put so much stuff into his heave that the lanky umpire, George Moriarity, had to leap high for a one-handed catch.

Last year the pitch from the president's medicine ball-muscled arm was too hot for Umpire Von Grafton to handle and it sailed into the ranks of Red Sox players aligined before the presidential box.

When the Nats opened against the Mackmen here two years ago they were handed a 13 to 4 licking. Last year they won seven out of the first nine with the Athletics

WOOSTER BALL CLUB IN NEED OF HURLERS

Pitching Talent Sadly Lacking at Presbyterian College; One Veteran Back.

Special to The Star

WOOSTER, O., April 11—Pitching talent is sadly lacking at Wooster College this spring as the varsity baseball squad goes through the daily workout when weather permits.

Baxter, junior, who pitched last year, is the only hurler on the squad. With two games scheduled for each week after the college season gets under way, at least one more hurler will be needed. Every varsity candidate who can throw with a little more than the average ability is being given the once over.

Seven letter men are included in the squad of 20. They are Capt. Ray Miller, shortstop, Al McConihe, second, Ralph Buehler, catcher, Breneman, first base, Cliff Nelson and Fred Schmidt, outfielders.

I. C. Boles, Wooster Athletic Director, has announced the following baseball schedule of twelve games:

Tues., April 28, Akron at Akron; Sat., May 2, Kent; Tues., May 5, Mt. Union; Fri., May 8, Muskingum at New Concord; Wed., May 13, Baldwin Wallace at Berea; Sat., May 16, Akron; Sat., May 23, Ashland at Ashland; Tues., May 26, Kent at Kent; Sat., May 30, Ashland; Sat., June 6, Baldwin-Wallace; Fri., June 12, Oberlin; Sat., June 13, Oberlin at Oberlin.

Sports Scribes Name A's, Cards to Again Win Flags

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 11—The St. Louis Cardinals and the Philadelphia Athletics will be leading the major league baseball parades come October unless some sixty newspaper "experts" are wrong, which, of course, is possible.

Voting in the fifth annual consensus of the Associated Press, 64 experts collaborating on the American league selections voted 41 to 23, that the club that Connie Mack built will win the American league pennant for the third successive year, while 66 experts voting on the National league cast 35 ballots to 31 that the St. Louis club again would win the flag in the older circuit.

The margins of the two 1930 pennant winners, while not as great as those given the Athletics and the Chicago Cubs last year in the consensus, still were sufficiently large to leave no room for argument as the combined opinion.

The 23 first place votes in the American league, not given the Athletics were divided among Washington, New York and Cleveland entries, with the Senators receiving 16, the Yankees six and Cleveland only one.

Brooklyn and Chicago divided the major portion of the Cardinal overflow, the Dodgers receiving 12 first place votes to 13 for Rogers Hornsby's Cubs while New York received four and Pittsburgh one—believe it or not—Philadelphia one.

The experts figuring in the consensus included all the major "war" correspondents who covered the big league camps for the metropolitan press of the country and other close observers of training camp activities.

Here is this year's consensus of how they will finish:

National — St. Louis, Chicago, Brooklyn, New York, Pittsburgh, Boston, Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

HITS OBSTACLE

Slight Hitch Develops in Title Fight Arrangements.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 11—A possible hitch developed today in the selection of Cleveland's municipal stadium for the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling championship heavyweight fight, but it was not regarded seriously.

City Manager Daniel E. Morgan, upholding his contention that the city obtained the best possible terms for the stadium, declared the negotiations were "off" if the promoters are not willing to erect a ring and ringside seats which are acceptable to the city and can be used for other fights.

Matchmaker William F. Carey of New York, however, has promised to spend a "substantial sum" for the seats and said they would have to meet every test of safety.

DEMPSEY REFUSES TO COMMENT ON RUMORS

Former Heavy Champ Denies Rift Between Himself and Estelle Taylor.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, April 11—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight ring champion, was en route to Reno, Nevada, today after refusing to comment on his matrimonial affairs and saying he sought six weeks of rest.

The ex-champion visited his mother here yesterday and left last night for Nevada, where divorce residence requirements were reduced recently to six weeks. He intimated he would spend his time camping, but did not name his companions.

Both Dempsey and his actress wife, Estelle Taylor, have denied recent reports they have had marital difficulties. Miss Taylor told of a minor disagreement, but denied knowledge of any intention on her husband's part to seek a divorce. Dempsey said the reports were news to him.

The former champion announced in Columbus, O., last Monday he would retire for two months on the order of physicians at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn. He said he planned to resume refereeing and promotion of bouts after his rest.

AFTER RECORD

Garwood to Make New Attempt on Speedboat Mark.

By The Associated Press

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 11—His racing craft tuned to perfection, Gar Wood today was ready for his attempt to wrest the world's speed boat crown from Kaye Don, of England.

Wood announced he would drive his twin-motored Miss America over a measured mile course in Indian creek in the hope of bettering the mark of 103.49 miles an hour set up by Don at Buenos Aires last week. The Detroit sportsmen instructed his mechanics to be ready to put the boat on the course at noon unless strong cross winds made the water too choppy for speed.

The weather forecast was for gentle to moderate winds from the east and southeast. The course runs north and south.

Canadiens Favored To Win Stanley Cup Play

By The Associated Press.

MONTREAL, April 11 — Once more it looks as if second place in either of the National hockey league's two groups is the ideal place for a team to finish in order to capture the Stanley cup and the world's professional championship.

The Montreal Canadians, who went from second place to a victory in the playoffs for the historic trophy last year, will find themselves with their backs to the wall tonight as they face the Chicago Blackhawks in the fourth game of the 1931 final series. The blackhawks, who finished second in the American division, are one game ahead, needing only one more victory to win the cup, and are strongly favored to capture it tonight.

BERG RETAINS TITLE BY BEATING WALLACE IN 10-ROUND BATTLE

English Pug Outclasses Cleveland Veteran in Rather Dull Fight.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 11—Jack (Kid) Berg, will be announced as champion when he enters the ring at Chicago, April 24 to fight Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight title. The Jewish boy from England retained his synthetic junior welterweight title in a 10 round bout with Billy Wallace, Cleveland veteran, at Olympia arena last night.

Berg outclassed Wallace in a boxing session marked mainly by light hitting and frequent clinching. He managed to average better than two blows to the Clevelander's one, but his punches carried little sting. Neither of the boys appeared to be hurt at the end of the match, but Berg was tired from continual milling. There were no knockdowns.

They started slowly, and their lack of desire to mix brought a warning from Referee Elmer McClelland and jeers from the crowd. Berg warmed up to his work after three or four rounds, however, and brought cheers with his speedy glove throwing.

Berg weighed 138 and Wallace 137. More than 13,000 persons paid to see the fight.

Breaks Another Record, but All for Nothing

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., April 11—Helene Madison has shattered another women's swimming record, but it won't be recognized.

She swam the 100 meter free style in 1:07.1, three and five tenths seconds faster than the mark made by Ethel Lackie, last night, but the feat will go without official recognition because it was done in a 60-foot pool.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

IF the promptness with which the various organizations entered their teams is any indication of future success, recreation baseball is due for a big year here this coming season. For the first time in years a sufficient number of teams have been entered for four leagues before the deadline for entries has been reached. In former years the commission has always found it necessary to extend the time for entering teams.

This year it will not be necessary to grant any extension of time inasmuch as a greater number of teams are already entered than the four leagues can accommodate. Everything points to a big year.

* * *

Recreation ball will have to have an extremely successful season if it is to surpass the numerous records hung up last year. Attendance last year was greater than any time before that. The little world's series attracted a record breaking series of crowds for the seven games and incidentally took in a larger total of gate receipts than ever before. Competition was keener last year in at least two of the four leagues than ever before in the local history of the game.

It will take a banner year to beat last season's mark, but it is not improbable it will be accomplished. Interest is already running high despite the fact the opening day is still one month away.

* * *

All these loud voices one hears now and will hear during the next 30 days is nothing more nor less than the managers of the various individual teams "telling the world" their team is certain to finish on the top rung of the league ladder. Optimism is the middle name of about 30 of the 32 managers in the city. There are a few who admit they believe their teams will need a lot of breaks to get very far, but most of them have already selected the spot on the wall where they intend to nail the pennant at the close of the season. What a disappointment some of these teams have in store.

Dunlap, Parks in Finals of Golf Tournament

By The Associated Press

PINEHURST, N. C., April 11—The battle for the Pinehurst North & South amateur golfing crown today was between George T. Dunlap, Jr. ,of New York, the intercollegiate champion, and S. M. Parks, Jr., Pittsburgh golfer.

Dunlap reached the final round by downing J. B. Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y., four and three, yesterday. Parks won a close contest with T. Suffern Tailer of Newport, R. I., two and one.

ANDERSON NAMED TO COACH NOTRE DAME

Jack Chevigny Will Assist Successor to Rockne at Irish School.

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 11—Heartley "Hunk" Anderson has been handed football's toughest job—coach of the fighting Irish of Notre Dame.

Anderson, first a player for the late Knute Rockne, then an assistant coach at Notre Dame, yesterday was named to direct the 1931 squad, with Jack Chevigny second command, will not have the title of "head" coach. He will be "senior" coach.

The title of head coach forever belongs to Rockne, Father Charles O. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, said in making the announcement yesterday.

"There will never be any head coach but Rockne at Notre Dame," he said. "Anderson will be in charge, but he will be the senior coach and Jack Chevigny the junior coach. Knute Rockne cannot be displaced as head coach.

"The eyes of the football world are on Notre Dame. It wants to know what Notre Dame will do without Rockne. You will answer. So carry on."

Anderson came to Notre Dame from Calumet, Mich., and when he was graduated in 1922, became Rockne's line coach. He remained at Notre Dame until the 1928 season when he went to St. Louis university to become head coach. He coached at St. Louis in 1928 and 1929, but returned to assist Rockne when Tom Lieb left Notre Dame to coach at Loyola of California.

Chevigny also was a star for Rockne. He was a member of the 1926, 1927, and 1928 squads and played regularly in his last season at right halfback. He was noted for his blocking ability and Rockne selected him as backfield coach. He served in that capacity during the past two seasons.

The spirit of "carry on" for Rockne has enveloped Notre Dame. Spring practice was resumed yesterday on a volunteer basis. No one had to come out, but every one of the 320 candidates who reported to Rockne before his tragic death, was on the field.

Every bulletin board on the campus and in the athletic dressing rooms bore placards reading "carry on," and the spirit was manifest in the grim earnestness of the candidates.

Veteran Driver Has Faith in Barrier Starting Plan

LONDON, O., April 11—Because he believes the barrier plan of starting harness horse racing is coming to Ohio to stay, William "Doc" McMillen, widely known horse trainer, is erecting a barrier on the half mile track of the Madison county fair grounds where he is training his stable and will use it in all of his track work, this spring.

McMillen says that the new devise is sure to make a hit with the fans and will in time come to be regarded as a necessary part of racing equipment by trainers and drivers when they see how much it improves the sport of harness racing.

He claims that a good horse never spoils a start, the bad ones causing all the trouble. It is the opinion of the London trainer that the green steppers wil itake to the barrier system as well as the aged trotters and pacers.

The barrier system was first suggested last fall when race owners and drivers held a meeting in preparation for spring and summer meets. It has been used with more or less success in other parts of United States and in all the foreign countries.

McMillen now has 20 horses in his stable and is a bit enthusiastic about one or two of his aged racers and several juveniles. He is planning to take in the grand circuit meeting at Kalamazoo where he has named Worthy Wood, 2:02¼ in the 2:12 $10,000 trot and the 2:15 trot for $2,000. He has also nominated his champion trotter, Peter Cowl, 2:02 in the handicap trot. Just the Guy and Andy Watts in the 2:20 trot and Harold Guy in the 2:21 pace.

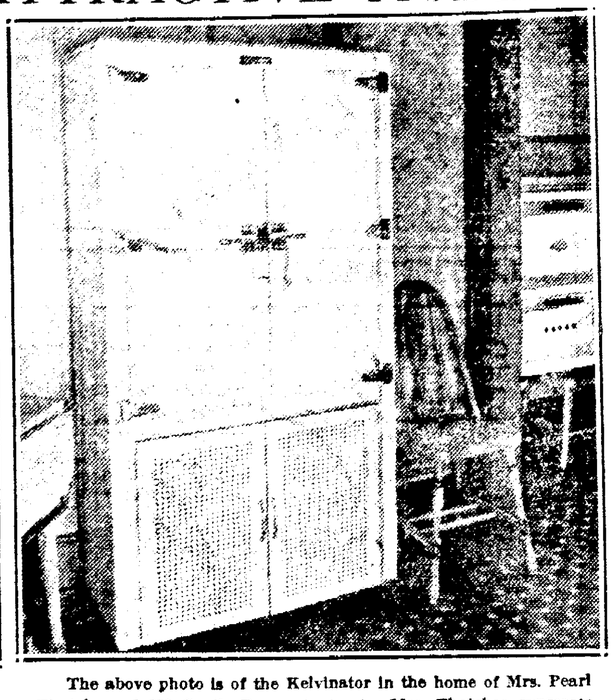
CONVENIENT AND ATTRACTIVE MODELS

Mrs. Paul Conrad of 232 Hane avenue is delighted with perfection of the frozen desserts made in her General Electric refrigerator, shown above. The convenience of always having ice cubes available and savings in food costs are also important points to her.



The above photo is of the Kelvinator in the home of Mrs. Pearl Thatcher of 679 South Prospect street. Mrs. Thatcher expresses herself as being very well pleased with the three years perfect service given by the Kelvinator and has found it very economical.

COMPANY CLAIMS PURCHASE OF ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR ACTUAL MONEY SAVER

The problem of food preservation has been a vital question in the daily life of all mankind from the earliest time.

The cave, the well, the cellar, the root house, natural ice, manufactured ice, etc., all have been forward steps in this problem of the preservation of food.

A question of this importance naturally attracts the attention of the scientist. Thus some 20 years ago men of scientific ability first began the study of refrigeration as applied to the home. Their first efforts were crude as measured by present day standards but they found their theories to be practical. From their initial beginnings the modern automatic care-free, dependable modern electric refrigerator developed.

Advance Rapid

Up until 1925 there were about 75,000 electric refrigerators used in the U. S. Since that time it is estimated that nearly 3,000,000 persons use electric refrigerators. The following figures give a fair idea of what has been accomplished in the last few years. In 1928, 468,000 electric refrigerators were sold, in 1929, 630,000, and in 1930, 775,000, and plans are being made for the sale of 1,000,000 in 1931. One business magazine today gives the following figures which may explain the status of this great industry. In 1927 there were 22 manufacturers of electric refrigerators, in 1929 there were 32. Nearly 50 manufacturers were in the business at the beginning of 1931. This should give an idea of the popular demand for electric refrigeration.

Nearly one thousand Marion families are enjoying the benefits of electric refrigeration today. People in all walks of life can vouch for the economical and dependable features which are embodied in the electric refrigerator.

Government statistics show an average of $700 annually spent by American householders for all the food stuffs required to provide the daily menus for our homes. They also add that a minimum of 10 per cent is lost due to improper refrigeration. Figures such as these indicate that the average family will pay for an electric refrigerator every three and one half years, taking the figure of $248 which is the average price at which six merchants of refrigerators will market them in 1931. Consider this statement when it brings home the fact that every three years we pay for an electric refrigerator in the saving of food alone, and we do not have it. Then the remark "we can not afford an electric refrigerator" should be "We can not afford to be without one."

Consider the problem of milk preservation in the summer months. How many of us can not use milk after it has been in our refrigerators over 24 hours as a result of improper refrigeration? A visit to any of our local modern dairy plants will show the stress that is placed upon refrigeration. Milk is only one item of our household requirements and every city today has a milk inspector for the sole purpose of protecting the residents from contaminated milk. Other foods are just as important and more money is spent accordingly for meats and vegetables.

Safeguards Food

Electric refrigeration with its uniformly low and even temperature safeguards every article of food entrusted to its care. Consider the dependable performance of the electric refrigerator. While we are working, shopping, playing or visiting our friends over the week-end our refrigerator is performing the task of protecting our foods and as we will recall, it is the only servant in the home that does not have to be assisted in its operations. We call upon our washer once or twice each week, our electric iron about the same number of times, and neither one of the above are used scarcely more than three or four hours at a time. Our refrigerator is in use 24 hours daily, and the operation and dependability are taken for granted.

When you buy an expensive rug or living room suite do you consider how many hours daily you use it, as compared with the hours of service an electric refrigerator will give at perhaps a smaller investment of your savings?

There is a model to fit each purse, and a size to fit the space now occupied by your present refrigerator. Compare the features offered in an electric refrigerator to what you are worrying along with today. Then on the other hand, do you think it would be unwise to invest in an article that would give you a return of 33 1-3 per cent annually.

Your monthly budget will easily cover the small added expense required to place the electric refrigerator in your home, and you will agree at the end of several months that your investment made your resolution of economy for 1931, really sound.

Invest in an electric refrigerator.

DEVOE PAINT WEARS LONGER, AGENT SAYS

H. O. Crawbaugh Exclusive Agent for Popular Brand in Marion.

Most every home carries insurance against fire, yet fires rarely occur, and insurance can never prevent them.

But as long as the sun shines and rain falls, deterioration is at work lessening the value of your property and eating up your dollars.

Paint not only insures against deterioration, but actually prevents it. You could buy no better insurance than that.

And, as in the case of insurance, the first consideration in paint is reliability. "Nowhere can you find a more reliable paint—a better product than Devoe lead and zinc paint," is the claim made by the H. O. Crawbaugh Hardware store, exclusive agents for the product in Marion.

Paint half your house with Devoe lead and zinc paint and paint the other half with any other paint you choose. If Devoe lead and zinc paint does not take fewer gallons and cost less money per job, we will make no charge for Devoe. This is the offer of the makers of Devoe paint.

If Devoe lead and zinc paint doesn't wear one or two or three years longer—longer and better—the Devoe company will give free of charge enough Devoe lead and zinc paint to repaint your entire house.

FIREPLACE "THROAT"

The throat of a fireplace should be formed by sloping the back of the fireplace towards the front; the actual opening should be two or three courses of brick above the level of the fireplace opening. The throat is provided with a damper which should be placed at the front of the fireplace with its front flange in the face brick to control the draft. This form of construction secures the windshelf or ledge at the back of the throat, which is important in checking down drafts.

25 YEARS IN BUSINESS HERE

Has Constructed Many of City's Most Beautiful Homes and Churches.

If one were to ask the question "Who is Marion's best-known building contractor?" the answer would undoubtedly be J. W. "Bill" Harruff. For the last 25 years, Mr. Harruff has devoted his time to the building of homes and making other homes more modern by remodeling them.

The beautiful residence illustrated at the right is the home of L. D. Zachman on Mt. Vernon avenue. This house was built by Mr. Harruff and is one of Marion's most attractive dwellings.

Mr. Harruff not only builds and remodels homes, but goes in for contracting on a larger scale. Work of remodeling the fire-swept McNeal-Welford block on west Center street is just being completed. At times, on this job, Mr. Harruff had in his employ as many as 40 men.

Built Spanish Type

Some of the more elaborate homes built under Mr. Harruff's supervision are the Gamble home on Vernon Heights boulevard, now the property of Johnson Curl. This is a Spanish type house and is one of the most attractive homes in Vernon Heights. The Thomas Knight residence on East Church street, the Frank Glosser home on Mt. Vernon avenue and the Episcopal parsonage on Lafayette street were also constructed by Mr. Harruff. The Calvary Evangelical church at the corner of Church and High streets and the Wesley M. E. church on Olney avenue are two of his largest building enterprises.

This list of homes and buildings, built, remodeled or repaired by "Bill's" men might be continued indefinitely as throughout the 25 years, such work has been almost constantly under way.

At the present time, Mr. Harruff has in his employ about 20 men. Although a building contractor has seasons, like any other business, when work is not so plentiful, "Bill" manages to keep seven of these men employed the year around. The last winter, however, work has been exceptionally plentiful and approximately 40 men were kept in employment.

Recreation Ball Fan

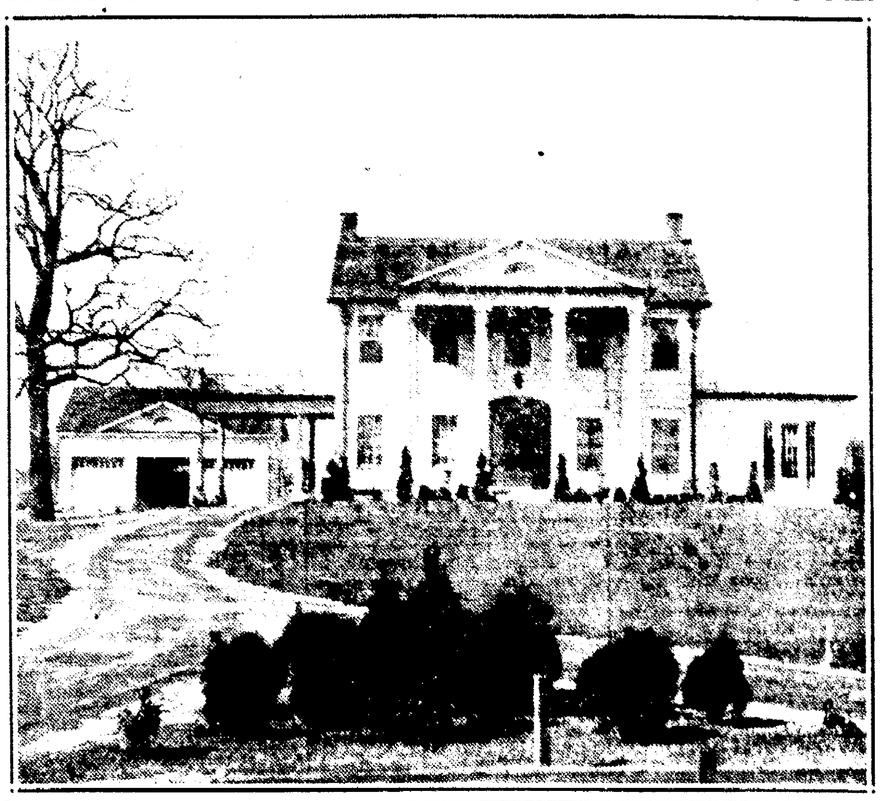
Mr. Harruff's favorite hobby is recreation ball. He doesn't play, but for the past several seasons has been manager of the Calvary Sunday school team, and has several times guided his team to a league championship and twice has led them to a city championship.

Mr. Harruff's home and office are at 270 Forest street, where he may be reached by anyone wishing an estimate of the cost of building, remodeling or repairing a building of any kind.

CEMENT IMPORTANT

The increasingly large number of uses to which cement may be applied explains the great strides made during recent years in the science of the manufacture of this invaluable product. Its invention alone rendered possible many of the extraordinary architectural, and more especially, engineering feats of the past century. Cement is undoubtedly destined to play the most important part in the new era of home building with permanent materials.

HERE'S HARRUFF-BUILT HOUSE



Local Firm Lists Benefits To Be Had from Electric Refrigerators

No less an authority than Dr. Royal S. Copeland states that "There is no excuse for having food poisoning." If you keep your perishable foods at low temperature you are safe as safe can be. Perishable food stuffs are safe from germ growth at 50 degrees or less. If meat or milk or delicate eatables are submitted to a temperature above 50 degrees, by the end of 24 hours they are teeming with harmful bacteria.

The only safe way is to have at your disposal some method of artifical refrigeration. You need this every month of the year. By acting on this advice, you will add days to your years, and years to your life, and you will serve those you love.

Economy

The economy of electrical refrigeration is three-fold. The question is often asked, what does it cost to operate an electric refrigerator?—a very honest answer always—"less than your present refrigeration costs." Every owner of an electrical refrigerator will verify that answer. However, this is but a small part of your savings.

Quantity Buying

The convenience and economy of bulk purchasing represents a tremendous savings in food costs. To prove this statement chart your costs of food for one week and then compare prices offered by local merchants on "Saturday specials." Your savings on meat alone will average five cents a pound. The average person seldom stops to think what this savings represents in a year's time, but it amounts to a great many dollars.

Following closely to the savings affected by "improved buying methods" is the economy of keeping the "left-overs" and foods that would otherwise be wasted. An electric refrigerator not only makes the use of "left-overs" absolutely safe—it enables the housewife to serve them in so many new and unusual combinations that their appeal actually vies with fresh foods, and makes each meal more appetizing and easier to prepare.

Cleanliness

Electrical refrigeration is "dry refrigeration." Contrary to the moisture in the average ice box which is the result of melting ice, the moisture in an electric refrigerator congeals on the cooling tank in the form of frost. Consider for a moment what that means—no moisture—a storage for food, sealed inside and outside with no opening door save the food service door.

The convenience of electric refrigeration can not be measured. Most housewives do not measure their time as having any value. If they did electrical refrigeration would be justified by that saving alone—no ice card—no waiting for delivery—no additional kitchen moping—no trap cleansing and boiling—think what this means in saving of time and effort.

Nothing in the modern home excells the electric refrigeration in point of economy and convenience. Your electric refrigerator works 24 hours every day in the year for you with less care than you give your kitchen cabinet.

PICKING HOME SITE

Many home building projects are spoiled because of the ill-advised selection of lots.

In choosing a home building site, such important matters as the possible need of grading or filling, excavation, drainage, improvements, transportation, etc., must never be lost sight of.

WALL PAPER HELPS HARMONY SCHEME

W. N. Crouso Points to Effects Obtained from Use of Proper Designs.

W. N. Crouso decorator 125½ South Main street says wallpaper will help to make a harmonious whole out of elements of furniture and furnishings that, without the right wall paper would be crude and discordant.

There is nothing you can do to make your home more beautiful and livable, that aid you so much at so moderate cost as wallpaper.

Make your hall as inviting as the great outdoors, let it extend a glad welcome to your arriving guests, also let the departing guests carry away a recollection of a pleasing home.

Science has proved, that the colors on the walls of your bed rooms have a distinct effect on your rest and your mental condition, and if any room in the home needs to be cheerful and colorfully good humored, it is the room you awaken in the morning. There is only one precaution—avoid the use of too bright a pattern in a small room, as it will have a tendency to crowd the room, and make it seem even smaller. Gray tones and airy designs will do wonders with a small room of this kind.

Mr. Crouso refers to the modern art and modern backgrounds as expressed in many of the 1931 wallpapers. They add materially to the beauty of the walls as foils for the furniture and draperies.

BEARS FORCE STOCK DROP

Dull Session Enlivened in Late Hours by Downward Pressure.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 11—Bears stole upon a loafing stock market from the rear today, and gave it a few sharp digs in the final transactions, enlivening an otherwise colorless session.

A fairly broad advance of a point or two achieved in the earlier trading was mostly lost, and several issues closed 1 to 4 points lower. Trading was in extremely slim volume until the last few minutes, and the total transactions for the two-hour session aggregated only 600,000 shares, the lowest for Saturday since Aug 2, when sales fell below 400,000 for the first time since 1926.

The market ended a week of indecision with a curiously indecisive performance. For the last three sessions, the list has failed to make notable progress in either direction, and trading has slackened at times close to a standstill. During the hour from 10.30 to 11.30, only 200,000 shares were traded today.

A bright spot in the day's news was a firming of copper prices, coincident with publication of the March statistics showing a further small reduction in stocks. Offerings of metal at 9 3-4 cents a pound disappeared, and custom smelters generally were asking 10 cents The copper shares, however, were sluggish, although Kennecott firmed up a little

Steel ingot production as estimated for next week in the Youngstown area shows the third successive weekly decline, although it is smaller this time, reducing output to 44 per cent of capacity, from 45 a week previously

A better tone in the bond was an encouraging development. Rails met good support, and recovered a little of the recent losses.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly lower, although changes were largely negligible Sterling Cables were 1-16 lower at $4 85 29-32. Dutch and German exchange, after averaging higher earlier in the week, reacted a little. The Brazilian milreis recovered further, and the French franc firmed.

GRAIN PRICES HOLD STEADY

Absence of Rain and Decreasing Foreign Bread Market Stabilize Quotations.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 11—Firmness characterized grain prices early today, owing to word that European bread stocks were decreasing and that no exporting country was pressing to sell Absence of rain in the spring wheat regions of the northwest tended also to uphold values

Opening at ¼ off to ¼ cent up, wheat afterwards held near to the initial range Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance and subsequently hardened

Emphasizing advices that trans-Atlantic supplies of wheat and flour showed a notable falling off, Liverpool dispatches said stocks in British ports now totaled 12,560,000 bushels, a decrease of 7,160,000 since Jan. 1 Indications of overnight export business in North American wheat gave further advantage to bulls and so too did news that European continental markets were 3@4½ cents a bushel higher for the week. Antwerp reported that United States No. 1 hard winter wheat, just arrived from the Gulf of Mexico, had been purchased at 77¼ cents.

Possibilities of crop alarms unless adequate moisture came soon in the spring wheat region south and north of the Canadian boundary were much discussed Reports said some rain and snow fell the past week, but it was extremely light compared to the normal supply, and that in view of deficiencies last season the situation was ominous. Primary domestic receipts of wheat continued to diminish, totaling 475,000 bushels against 745,000 a week ago and 965,000 on the corresponding day last year. Corn and oats followed wheat.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, April 13

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE indicates promotion and prosperity for all pertaining to employment, labor, the clergy, and to all manner of scientific or meta physical preoccupations or vocations Elderly persons and strangers may figure in affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which definite progress or promotion may be counted upon, with assistance from elders or strangers and with the preferment or recognition of employers. There may be some advantageous change or journey A child born on this day should be ingenious, original, steady and industrious and should win the good will and partonage of elders and employers, as well as of strangers. It may have an interesting career and attain substantial position by its own worth and effort.

For Monday, April 13

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL chart holds testimonies of annoying, uncertain and difficult situations to be encountered. Employment has some minor oppositions, new undertakings hold little promise, and generally there is prospect of difficulty, postponement and frustration. Be careful with funds and safeguard property

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which there may be many difficult and thwarting situations to surmount by resolution, optimism and good judgment. There is sign of delays, annoyances in employment, and jeopardy to funds and to property. New projects are not encouraged A child born on this day may be disposed to be morose, sullen and melancholy unless given an education encouraging a healthy and optimistic outlook upon life and its affairs.

BUTTER, EGGS STILL HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Seed Potatoes Arrive on Market Here; Mangoes Down.

Marion markets remained steady last week and very few prices changed

Butter dropped a cent Tuesday and sold the rest of the week at 33 to 36 cents a pound It threatened to take another drop Friday when the price on the Cleveland market dropped a half cent

Egg prices remained the same throughout the week although it appeared several times that they would go up. They are selling at local stores at 19 to 25 cents a dozen

White icicle radishes made their first appearance on local markets and were selling at five cents a bunch. Green mangoes sold at five to eight cents a piece after retailing for some time at 7 to 10 cents each.

Seed potatoes made their first appearance at the local markets yesterday.

"SKIPPY" MAKES HIT HERE IN PREVIEW; TO OPEN MONDAY

BY HALLIE HOUCK

"SKIPPY" playing at the Palace Monday, Tuesday and Wedday is thoroughly enjoyable. Little Jackie Cooper, who has been dear to us since his defenses of "Miss M'Gillicudy" in Our Gang comedies is a small boy of any city of American boys. Freckle-faced, sandy haired, shrewd, a little outlaw in his own neighborhood but a "swell guy" with the gang on the other side of the railroad tracks. A preview of the picture was given last night.

Robert Coogan, dressed in the rags and tatters which brought his brother Jack to fame and a high little voice is Sooky. Skippy's best pal, and of course a product from the "undesirable" side of town. Mitzi Green, cuter than ever and Jackie Searl complete the foursome.

Willard Robertson and Enid Bennett are Dr. and Mrs. Skinner, Skippy's parents. His father is health officer of the city, who condemns Shanty Town, where Sooky is the dirtiest urchin of them all.

Being regular boys, a dog is involved, Needless to say, when the story closes Skippy's father is a hero to his young son, and Skippy and Sooky are inseparable pals.

"SKIPPY"

Percy Crosby created a comic strip that was appealing to everyone. Paramount has made a picture that has the same appeal. By all means take the children. They'll love it, and so will you.

ALL COLOR PICTURE COMING TO OHIO

A picture-proof cast has been assembled for "Fifty Million Frenchmen," playing at the Ohio Sunday through Thursday. Heading the cast are Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson famous comedy duo of the stage and screen. William Gaxton, Helen Broderick and Lester Crawford who played in the stage, production, play the same roles on the screen.

• • •

If you've often wondered why "fifty million Frenchmen can't be wrong," the answer will be found in this all-color picture.

The famous Ritz Bar in Paris, gathering place of the much-moneyed from all over the world, has been brought to the screen with all its colorful details. An exact replica of this celberated Parisian rendezvous, to which ladies are not admitted, was built for "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

ADOLPHE MENJOU AT MARION

Adolphe Menjou tops the cast of "Men Call It Love," at the Marion Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Menjou is one of the men many thought doomed with the birth of talking pictures, but the microphone has decreed differently.

Supporting him are Leila Hyams, Mary Duncan, Hedda Hopper and Norman Foster. Menjou, the immaculate, impeccable gentleman of the screen, with his waxed moustache, nonchalant walking stick and tilted hat, was born and brought up in grimy Pittsburgh. His parents were French and Irish. He went to Cornell university to become a mechanical engineer, but he found theatricals more engrossing and after receiving his diploma went on the stage. He enlisted in the World war and was made a captain, commanding ambulance units both in France and Italy.

"Men Call It Love" is a picturization of the successful Vincent Lawrence stage farce, "Among the Married."

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" RETURNING HERE

The Princess is returning "Charley's Aunt" to the city for three days, beginning Sunday. The title role is Charles Ruggles, and he makes the most of the part. The picture was favorably reviewed in the column on its first appearance here.

A doggy comedy, "Dogway Melody" is also on the bill.

Tribute to Rockne by Will Rogers Reveals a Man Great in Achievement and Nobility of Character

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers. Been so much calamity here the last week or so that its hard to dig much cheerful nourishment out of the news prints. Poor Knute Rockne so upset everybody that we just can't get over it, especially those of us who had the good fortune to know him. The more you think of him the more remarkable he becomes. I used to go out on one night stand (so called Concert Tours) and I always used to play South Bend, and there would be a bunch of the Boys down to my little Lecture. Well the minute I would hit town he would be down to the hotel and I would be with him most of the day, go out to the school, and if it was anywhere around football time, I would see them work out and when I say them, I mean them there would be literally hundreds of em on all the teams together.

You know he dident just have the big team and the Scrubs, he had dozens of em. Dormitory teams, class teams. Every kind of team all but Fraternity teams, they dont have them there. They have got some kind of a preparatory school there too I guess for he showed me practicing one time a bunch of little kids, and he would show me how they had all his plays.

Youngsters Learn Readily

He said "If some Coach was smart enough, he would come here and watch these little kids work out and he would get every play I've got. I have secret practice to try out my new formations and there wont seem to be a soul in the place, but you come out here the next day and you will see them running through the same ones I had the Varsity working on the day before. They sneak in here away ahead and hide in the most outlandish places, under the stands, the seats, and everywhere and they all try to copy my Stars, they try to walk like em, talk like em, copy all their little mannerisms. Two of them had a fight over which one was Struldriehr. I will always have pretty good material as long as they study the fine points of the game that early."

Then down at the Theater that night where I was playing I would get him up on the stage, and all the team, and it would always be a great night and also day for me. Just to be around him was a treat. He had developed into one of the best after dinner Speakers in this country. He had a great fund of humor, and storys of real happenings and he had so much sincerity in his talks, he really made you believe it. I can easily understand how those Boys played their hearts out for him. He sure did inspire confidence."

"Rock's" Great Day

I think his greatest feat was his last game, that was out here with University of Southern California. Here we thought out here we had the greatest team that ever represented the coast, tremendous Stadium filled, Notre Dame hadent lost a game in two years, and this was their last, it was the last for a lot of their big Stars who were graduating. Rockne was touted to lose. The night before over the radio he admitted that he dident have much of a chance. "Savoldi is out, he was our mainstay. Then on the way out we lost our fullback by illness. We have gone through a tough season, and we just couldent stay on edge so long. The Boys had to have a let down. I have asked too much of them this season with the terrible schedule they had, and it just is not in human beings to keep up their pace till now. We have got to lose, and we want to lose to you in preference to anybody else. Its a long train trip out here. Its much warmer here than back home, and the heat is against the boys, but we will just give you the best we got. But I dont possibly see how we can win, in the shape we are in."

Now what other coach on earth could give such a straightforward talk as that, and not have every word swallowed hook, line and sinker? Then get this last line he gave us that night before, "Now there is going to be a lot of heartaches tomorrow afternoon after that game. Great big strong young men are coming into the dressing rooms and break down and cry. But my boys can take it a little easier, because they dont expect to win, they have steeled themselves to the defeat."

How It Happened

Well here we are all packed in the stands, realy pitying those poor boys from back there, and hoping that the California boys wouldent seriously hurt any of them running over them on the way to the goal posts. Well on the very first play California fumbled. Well from then on it was just too bad. You never saw a team beaten so cool and deliberate like. Notre Dame huddled for a change, and when they come out of it they would walk as slow to their places, and that got Cals goat. They finished by Notre Dame beating them 27-0. It wasent the score, it was the deliberate and mechanical way they did it, it was a machine doing things where the others were trying with their hands.

And here was a great thing he did, as each one if his Stars that would be taken out of the game in the last half and it was their last game for Notre Dame, he would jump up from the bench and go out and meet him and hug him, you could just see the affection that he had for each one, and it was conveyed to the whole audience. I will never forget when little Carideo, (perhaps the greatest field General that ever played football) left the field. He had played a whale of a game, handled his team uncanny. There is a lot of drama in a player like that leaving the field for his last time as a College player. I think Rockne pulled him out just to get him that great hand as he left the Stadium. Well when old "Rock" went out and put his arms around that little Carideo and walked him off the field, it wasn't an ovation, it was hurricane.

Tragedy Unseen

We dident know then what we was looking at. We thought it was the exit of another great Quarterback. But we was looking at the exit of Knute Rockne. He was hugging his last Player, fine young men all over the U. S. can feel back and cherish the hug they got on their last game from "Rock." But it was little Carideo that got the last hug. Here he was right on the crest. He had beaten the Coasts great team for a two year no defeat record for Notre Dame. But the whole of California loved him, for that night on the radio he apologized for the size of the score and said, "I had to make it big for Coach Jones will make it bigger than that against me next year. He coached Notre Dame Stars in Charity games once or twice after that. But this was his last real Notre Dame scheduled game.

One lone Ranch Hand in Kansas was supposed to have been the sole witness to his passing. But that's not so, eighty thousand of us saw his passing out, his last game, and it will stick with us through life.

2 MEN FINED $25 ON FISHING CHARGE

Neimeyer Arrests Marion Pair; Appear in Prospect Court.

James Dixon and Walter Phelps of Marion were assessed fines of $25 each when they pleaded guilty in the justice court of Major G. Gast at Prospect yesterday to charges of taking fish illegally.

The men were arrested by State Game Protector O. H. Neimeyer on charges they were taking fish from the river at Prospect by hand.

They were arrested at the C. D. & M. dam a short distance south of Prospect, where hundreds of fish of various kinds have been taking suckers from the water by the dozen for the last few days.

The fish bound upstream for spawning, are delayed at the head of the dam. It is with difficulty that they clear the dam and continue upstream.

Taking advantage of the trap created by the dam, men have been taking them from the water with seines and snares as well as by legal means.

Marion Man Given Six-Month Sentence

Fred Burkett, 38, of 1048 street pleaded guilty to a charge of exposure of person in municipal court yesterday afternoon and was sentenced to serve six months in the Columbus workhouse by Judge William R. Martin. Burkett will be taken to Columbus early next week.

He was taken into custody Thursday night by local police. Many persons living near the intersection of Olney avenue and Oak street complained of his actions. Police say that Burkett has been a annoying residents of the west side for some time.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

Montgomery Ward & Co. has filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission against Unfair Tire Advertising!

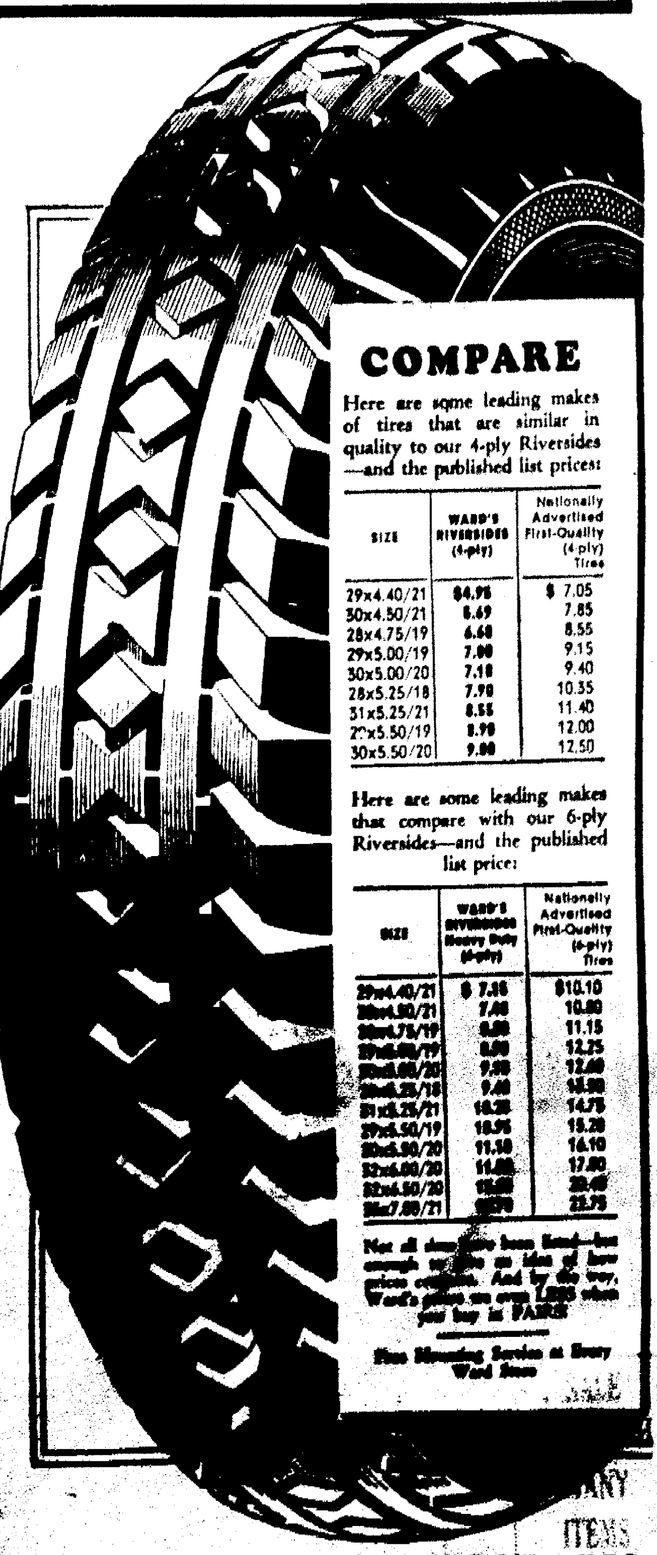
...Newspaper and magazine advertisements are being published throughout the country in which nationally advertised tires are compared with a "mail order" tire ...We have been asked if the "mail order" tire referred to is our RIVERSIDE. The reason for this is obvious. Ward's is the oldest mail order house in America. So, when anyone says "mail order," most people naturally think first of Montgomery Ward & Co. No! the tire referred to is not Ward's Riverside!

RIVERSIDES

Are Equal to or Better Than ANY Tires Made Regardless of Name or Price!

Montgomery Ward & Co. is one of the largest distributors of automobile tires in the world. And for 19 years, Riversides have been one of the best known tires in the industry. Millions have been sold. They are made by one of the largest rubber companies in America. They are built to the most rigid tire specifications known. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by the fairest, squarest guarantee ever written, and they sell for less than other nationally known tires of equal quality. These sound like extraordinary claims. But they are facts. And Montgomery Ward & Co. stands behind every word.

The big tire companies have found it impossible to meet Riverside quality at Riverside prices—so most of them now sell what are known as "second quality" tires at the same price we charge for Riversides, a first-quality tire! Furthermore, a recent check disclosed that close to 90% of all the newspaper advertising of the leading tire companies is being devoted to their second-quality tires. Why? Evidently to confuse the reader. The reader notes that the prices are the same as Riversides, and assumes that the quality is the same. But the nationally advertised tires offered at Riverside prices are not equal to Riversides in quality. Always compare QUALITIES as well as PRICES. The table at the right lists some of the best-known first-quality tires that compare with Riversides in quality. YOU compare the prices!



COMPARE

Here are some leading makes of tires that are similar in quality to our 4-ply Riversides —and the published list prices:

SIZE	WARD'S RIVERSIDES (4-ply)	Nationally Advertised First-Quality (4-ply) Tires
29x4.40/21	$4.95	$ 7.05
30x4.50/21	5.69	7.85
28x4.75/19	6.60	8.55

29x5.50/19	8.90	12.00
30x5.50/20	9.00	12.50

Here are some leading makes that compare with our 6-ply Riversides—and the published list prices:

SIZE	WARD'S RIVERSIDES Heavy Duty (6-ply)	Nationally Advertised First-Quality (6-ply) Tires
29x4.40/21	$ 7.15	$10.10
30x4.50/21	7.85	10.80

"What Shall It Profit?"

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. E. RADEBAUGH

Pastor Calvary Evangelical Church

"What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul." Mark 8:36.

THE Bible teaches that "God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." (Gen. 2:7). "With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early." (Isa. 26:9).

The soul so precious may be lost. If we really believed it could we preach so carelessly? Could we pray so coldly?" When the soul is lost three things are lost: first, the world; second, the means of grace, and third, hope.

What is the world? St. John answers, "All that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life." That is the world. It is something in you. The world does not satisfy. Does wealth satisfy? Do the pleasures of the world satisfy? Many are selling their immortal souls, for which Jesus Christ died, and which shall live forever, in Heaven and glory, or in hell and shame, for some single form of pleasure.

If a soul is lost it loses the means of grace. "There is no device nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest."

Many have heard their last sermon. There will be no second chance. "Today is the day of salvation." What will the poor world do when the saints are no longer here to pray.

The rich man in hell prayed but it was too late to pray. Now is the time to attend prayer meeting.

We have known men and women who gave up the world for Christ, who gave up money for Christ, gave up the pleasures of the world for Christ. They never regretted it. We have known people who gave up Christ for the world, and when the hour came in which the eternal realities were opening upon them, they bitterly regretted it. They awoke to the fact that their eternal hope was lost. It may be that the best chance for some of you to get saved is past. The old Hebrew preacher, in the long ago, said, "I saw the wicked buried," and the last time he saw them they were in a revival meeting rejecting Jesus Christ.

WOMEN GIVE VIEWS ON DRY QUESTION

"Good Example" and Education Would Aid Prohibition, They Say.

Wickersham commission has done much to strengthen opinion favoring the Eighteenth amendment.

"We believe that their conclusions, arrived at in spite of the personal preferences of at least half of the commission, testify more strongly than anything else could have done to the social and economic benefits already evident as a result of the Eighteenth amendment."

The report stated its authors were opposed to the revision of the amendment suggested by the Wickersham commission, as well as to modification, repeal, a national referendum, and to the liquor control plan put forward by Commissioner Henry W. Anderson.

"We maintain," the report said, "that the question has been referred to the people in every congressional election, with the result that after five such elections there are today more members of congress favorable to prohibition than at the time of the passage of the amendment.

"We find that the opponents of prohibition, while voicing their approval of an educational campaign and training for temperance have prevented the dissemination of information from federal sources by blocking appropriations of funds for this purpose."

It was suggested that the prohibition bureau issue semi-monthly statements in popular form on subjects relating to the dry law.

ROYAL COUPLE START TOUR OF AMERICA

Prince of Japan and Young Bride Given Noisy Welcome in New York.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 11 — Prince Takamatsu of Japan and his bride set out today to discover what makes America tick.

He didn't put it quite that way but it seemed, nevertheless, to be the general idea of the interview he gave shortly after his arrival.

"I look forward to seeing all the things that make for the greatness of America and to meeting many of its prominent people," he said. "I have long read and studied books on America and I know I shall enjoy the visit."

As for his bride of a year, Princess Kikuko, "she too wishes to see the great things that are here."

Prince Takamatsu, younger brother of Emperor Hirohito and a member of the oldest reigning family in the world, is traveling incognito but his first full day in the United States was filled with official functions. It included an official welcome by Mayor Walker at City hall, an inspection of the Metropolitan museum of art, a luncheon by the city, a visit to radio broadcasting studios, and a dinner by Japanese residents of New York.

The couple stepped yesterday across a shaky gangplank from the liner Aquitania to the city's welcoming yacht, took a salute of 21 guns as they passed Governor's island, and rode up Broadway through lanes of cheering crowds.

ARMY PLANE FORCED DOWN NEAR AIRPORT

Pilot Uninjured as Ship Lands in Muddy Field During Mild Storm.

An army airplane, blown off the course and buffeted by wind and rain, made a forced landing in a wheat field in the northeast corner of Kenton avenue and Silver street yesterday. The pilot, Lieutenant Johnson, and a passenger were uninjured and the plane was only slightly damaged.

The plane was on its way from Wright field at Dayton to Detroit, and was approximately 60 miles off its course when forced down. The pilot of a companion plane saw Marion airport in time to make his landing there.

No effort has been made to remove the plane from the muddy field.

House Speaker Reported "Resting Easier" Today

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 11—Arthur Hamilton, speaker of the lower house of the Ohio general assembly who collapsed yesterday, was reported "resting much easier" today.

Lester J. Abele of Cleveland, majority leader, said he spent a half hour with Hamilton this morning and that the speaker, suffering from an old ailment, seemed much better. He said he was uncertain whether Hamilton could be removed to his home in Lebanon for several days.

GET LICENSE TO WED

Marriage licenses were issued late this morning in the office of Probate Judge Oscar Gast to Arthur D. Florence, a laborer of Tiffin, and Nina E. Ensign, a clerk of Marion; Robert Mather, a farmer of Richwood and Margaret Kuhner, a stenographer of Marion.

NEW ORLEANS, April 11—Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt continued with her theatrical engagement today after a physician informed her that a rash from which she was suffering was not the measles.

Seize First Liquor Boat of Year on Lake Erie

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., April 11—The first liquor seizure on Lake Erie this season and one of the few made since the Canadian export laws were revised last June, was on record today.

S. R. Chapman, commander of the coastguard boat CG 2275, reported he had captured a 36-foot cruiser, loaded with 354 cases of Canadian beer, near the entrance to Sandusky Bay, Tuesday night. The crew of two, Lawrence Jeremy, 30, and Lawrence Rhinehart, 50, both of Port Clinton, were arrested.

CHARLES W. A. SCOTT has lowered by nine hours the flying time from England to Australia.

Miss Eleanor Smith, the courageous girl who recently became unconscious in her airplane and dropped 15,000 feet, has gone up again after the altitude record. This time she appears to have brought it down with a record of 32,000 feet.

Considering their limited opportunities and the general inclination to discourage women to do something serious, the women do better than men in the air.

CLUB WOMEN FAIL TO ADOPT MOTION

State Federation Head Regretful When Delegates Support Sunday Movie Bill.

By United Press

YOUNGSTOWN, April 11—Failure of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs convention to adopt a motion expressing disapproval of the bill to legalize Sunday motion picture shows was against wishes of the officers of the federation, it was learned today as delegates were returning to their homes from the four-day meeting.

Mrs. W. H. Schwartz, state president, expressed regret in her final speech that the convention had expressed itself as opposed to Sunday closing of the movies. The federation board of directors had voted disapproval of the Marshall bill legalizing Sunday movies and directors and officers had wired protests against the bill to their state representatives and senators. The bill finally was passed by the legislature Thursday.

Action of the directors and officers was overruled by the convention delegates when they voted down a motion expressing disapproval of the bill after spirited debate.

MARION CEMETERY DIRECTORS TO MEET

Officers Will Be Named at Annual Session Tuesday Night.

Annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Marion Cemetery association will be held Tuesday night, April 14, in the offices of the directors of the Marion National bank. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Election of officers, reading of reports covering the last year's activities, and a discussion of the 1931 program for the cemetery are among the matters to come before the board in its annual session.

The board is composed of a score of life members. C. D. Schaffner is president, S. E. Barlow is vice president, and H. J. Merchant is secretary and treasurer. Other members of the board are J. G. Leffler, D. R. Crissinger, H. B. Hane, H. A. True, George H. Van Fleet, C. N. Phillips, J. F. Dombaugh, C. C. Fisher, G. J. King, L. D. Zachman, Homer R. Waddell, O. E. Kennedy, Ray R. King, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, John H. Bartram, Edmund H. Keller and John P. Probst.

Driver of Car Fails To Pay for Gas and Oil.

Four men in a sedan entered the Pure Oil station at Spencer and Center streets late last night, ordered the attendant to put 10 gallons of gas in the tank and four quarts of oil, and then drove off without paying for the merchandise.

The driver of the car was described by the attendant as having black hair, light complexion and wore a grey overcoat. He failed to get the license numbers of the car.

HEAR EDUCATOR

Supervisor of Visual Instruction Addresses P-T A. Group.

Prof. B. A. Aughinbaugh, state supervisor of visual instruction in the state department of education, addressed an open meeting of the Vernon Heights Parent-Teacher association Thursday night. His talk on "Interesting Historical Places in Ohio," was illustrated. Miss Edith Kesler, supervisor of art in the public school, urged the parents to attend the art exhibits in the schools throughout the city.

The P-T A. announced the purchase of a moving picture machine for the building. Dr. C. B. Turley of the Chester club made an appeal to the association for its support in the coming Community Fund drive. Mrs. W. J. Wetzel, Mrs. H. L. Brady and Miss Mayette Anderson were named on a membership committee. They will make a report at the May meeting.

news had been kept from her.

So great was the throng, eager to pay their tribute that strict regulations had to be put in force.

Soldier on Guard

"Rookwood" was open to all friends of the family and squads of city police served as a guard at the estate. An infantryman from Fort Thomas, Ky., stood at attention at the head of the casket, all the while the body lie in state.

Special seating arrangements were made at the church to accommodate the presidential and congressional parties and scores of acquaintances. Admission was by card only.

The body of Mr. Longworth was borne by R. A. Wallingford, his three sons, R. A. Jr., Nicholas and Landon, and Kermit and Archie Roosevelt, brothers of Mrs. Longworth. There were 50 honorary pallbearers.

The government special train arried from Aiken, S. C., where the speaker died two days ago of pneumonia, at 7 a. m., Marion time.

A crowd of early morning residents, many of them railroad employes, stood with bared heads as the body of the 61-year-old speaker was removed from the private car of Charles Clark of Aiken, through a window and taken immediately to the family home.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the former President and stepmother of Mrs. Longworth, Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt and Mrs. Edith Derby, came here direct for the funeral.

President Hoover arrived on a special train from Washington shortly before noon to attend funeral services at Christ Episcopal church, conducted by the Right Reverend Henry Wise Hopson, Episcopal bishop of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the speaker, left the train immediately and accompanied by her brother, Kermit Roosevelt and Mrs. James Curtis, of Aiken, went directly to her home.

Archibald Roosevelt, another brother, remained at the depot, later planning to go to Mrs. Longworth's residence, then meet President Hoover's special train which was due here shortly before noon.

POLICE BAFFLED IN HUNT FOR KIDNAPERS

Wisconsin Authorities Await Further Instructions from Abductors of Brewer.

By The Associated Press

MONROE, Wis., April 11—R. O. Wells, secretary of the Blumer Products company said today he had received an anonymous letter from Chicago reducing to $100,000 the $150,000 ransom asked for the return of Fred J. Blumer, 50, head of the Monroe brewery, reputedly held by kidnapers.

Blumer, former president of the Wisconsin Brewers' association has been missing from his home since Thursday when he left to keep a "business" appointment. Shortly after, Wells received a telephone call stating Blumer was safe but held for $150,000 ransom.

Conflicting suggestions as to probable motives in the case drew acknowledgements of complete mystification from Sheriff Myron West and Lieut. Phil Carroll of the Chicago police detective squad, assigned to assist in its solution. The officers were confident, they said, no harm would come to Blumer and that a few hours might bring valuable information.

A report that Mrs. Blumer had conferred with bankers in an attempt to raise the money demanded for ransom was declared untrue by Frank B. Lichsinger, president of the First National bank, of which Blumer is a director. He said Mrs. Blumer was satisfied to permit authorities to handle the case as they saw fit.

suffering from a world wide condition."

The Democratic candidate against Longworth last year was John W. Pattison, son of a former governor of Ohio. He ran as an out and out wet. The impression in Washington is that Pattison will be a candidate again, although the leaders realize, of course, that this is a matter that is up to the Democrats of the district.

After the election last November, Speaker Longworth was inclined to blame himself for the narrowness of his victory. Always opposed to prohibition, he said he allowed himself to be persuaded by dry leaders to soft-pedal the issue while his opponent was hammering on it. "Nick" told his cronies that had he had it to do over again he would have boldly proclaimed his wetness and defied the drys to do their worst.

In any event, there is a spectacular and unusually significant battle in the offing in the first Ohio district, with the whole country interested in the outcome.

Chicago Thugs Rob Pair of $30,000 in Jewels

CHICAGO, April 11—Police today scoured the city for four bandits who last night held up Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Means, threatened them with torture and death, and robbed their south side home of $30,000 in jewels, furs and cash.

Means was fitting his house key into the door when the bandits forced him to open the door, then pushed him and his wife inside.

Would You Know What To Do...?

IF ASKED TO BE A PALL-BEARER

By the Schaffner-Queen Co.

To be asked to be a pall-bearer is a distinct honor, as well as an evidence of deep regard. Consent should therefore be given if it is at all possible to serve.

Pall-bearers should make sure that they know the time and place for assembling. When they arrive, the funeral director will explain to them the exact order of procedure and the details of their especial duties—which may be either actual or honorary, as the family decides.

In instances when women or girls act as pall-bearers, it is always for some appropriate reason and they should accept the honor with confidence. If at all in doubt as to just what to do, consult a reliable, experienced funeral director. He knows the correct—and the expected—usage, in all instances.

"It's a Beautiful Drive."

America's first roads, cut through virgin forests and flung over swamps, were purely utilitarian in purpose—but still beautiful in effect. It was after the automobile took millions of prospective buyers on the public highways that many roads began to be just plain utilitarian—smooth surfaces to accommodate traffic and nothing more. So general has this become that any road comparatively free of defacements along its right-of-way is called "a beautiful drive," and is traveled with especial pleasure.

The same doubt that has awakened America to consciousness of beauty is architecture, city planning, decorating, landscaping and the like, however, is having its effect on the public's attitude toward highways. Within the last few years, resentment against unsightliness along the highways has grown to respectable proportions. Preservation of roadside beauty, and conservation and restoration of artistic values are very real motives that can not be ignored, even by the most high-handed perpetrators of ugliness.

It is right and natural that the nation and states should take the lead in responding to the increasing demand for preservation of the lands contiguous to highways. Ohio has done eminent work by restricting the activities of sign companies and keeping down weeds along right-of-ways, and will continue its program on an increasing scale as the public demand is realized.

Another encouraging response to the demand has been made by the forest service of the United States department of agriculture, which can be of material assistance in preserving the beauty of national forest lands adjacent to public highways. Through the power invested in its agents, unsightly filling stations, unnecessary signs, disharmonious construction and unnecessarily ugly cuts and fills can be eliminated from right-of-ways under government control. "If majority opinion definitely agrees that the scenic value of the lands contiguous to the public highways are of greater importance and more essential to public welfare than the benefits which would be derived through commercial or industrial exploitation of such lands or the products thereof, the forest service will have extreme difficulty in justifying contrary principles of administrative management," read instructions issued to foresters.

Yes indeed. It has taken America a long time to realize that it can afford to make a place for the beautiful, but the conviction has grown to proportions where it can not be overlooked safely any longer. The state is leading the way, and offending commercial enterprises that value public favor will do well to take similar recognition of the demand for highway beauty undefiled.

Germany To Call the Bluff.

Foreign Minister Julius Curtious, of Germany, has forwarded a demand to Geneva that the fullest details covering the armaments of the countries which have been invited to participate in the disarmament conference be published before the assembling of the conferees, and in connection with the demand he insists that the entire matter be discussed at the coming May session of the council of the League of Nations. In a word Germany proposes to let it be known that she has become tired of being the one, solitary goat of the Treaty of Versailles. She claims that she has done her part in living up to the obligations assumed by her in the treaty and plans to demand that the other parties to it live up to theirs. She will set out that she is disarmed to all intent and purposes and would be helpless before the attack of a foreign foe, while the other powers to the treaty which also agreed greatly to reduce their armaments are more heavily armed than they ever before were in peace time, if not in time of war. Putting it in another way, Germany proposes to "call the bluff" of the powers which have been holding out that they are desirous of disarming and meanwhile have been augmenting their forces on land and sea and in the air.

That the German government has a very comprehensive idea of the forces on which it asks a showing, is made evident by its citation of the armed strength of the governments who may be called the next-door neighbors of Germany. Against her army and navy of 115,000 men, with no reserves, 288 pieces of light artillery—heavy artillery being denied her—with no tanks, no military planes and a navy of only 36,000 tons which doesn't possess a first-line fighting ship, Germany sets out this imposing array of fighting strength by the countries about her:

France—655,700 soldiers, 2,500 planes, 4,500 tanks, 1,200 pieces of heavy artillery, and 416,100 naval tons.

Poland—298,941 soldiers, 1,000 planes, 320 tanks, 414 pieces of heavy artillery.

England—182,000 men under arms, 834 planes, 350 tanks, 500 pieces of heavy artillery, and a fleet of 1,240,700 tons.

Czecho-Slovakia—140,000 soldiers, 850 planes, 100 tanks, 412 pieces of heavy artillery.

Belgium—66,143 soldiers, 234 planes, 271 pieces of heavy artillery.

Italy—638,300 soldiers, 250 tanks, 1,160 planes, 650 pieces of heavy artillery, and 280,420 naval tons.

Roumania—144,000 soldiers, 175 pieces of heavy artillery, and 350 airplanes.

Russia—1,200,000 soldiers, 250 tanks, 1,400 airplanes, 600 pieces heavy artillery.

Summed up, Germany has practically nothing in the way of national defense while the countries about her possess an aggregate army of 3,314,484 men, 8,318 military planes, 5,700 tanks, 4,122 pieces of heavy artillery and 1,937,220 tons of warships.

Considering this showing, not only Germany, but all the world, has ground for questioning the good faith behind the protestations of these European lands that they desire to disarm.

There have been two naval disarmament conferences, and aside from one mighty battleship almost completed and the conversion of two other great battleships well along in the course of construction into plane carriers, all these by the United States, not a single ton of first-line battle strength has been given up; not a ton of fighting strength other than that which was obsolete has been junked by any European power, and what limitation of cruiser strength there has been was due more to lack of funds than honest inclination to limit it.

The Versailles treaty was signed twelve years ago, and Germany alone of all European nations parties to it has conformed to its disarmament obligations.

Well, from all accounts, Neb. wasn't the sort of a fellow who suffered from a degree of diffidence which would exclude a little self-exploitation.

SH-H-H! THE INVESTIGATORS ARE COMING!

EXTRAVAGANCE AND WASTE.

Our country always has been prodigal. We have been so big as a nation, and so rich, that we have gone forward plucking only the richest of our fruits, garnering the best only of our crops, selecting the best only of our stock. Nature's very prodigality has begotten in us habits of extravagance and waste, of improvidence. What here is wasted would seem opulent wealth in the eyes of the peasantry of many lands.

We have abused the virgin virility of our soil. It has not been long since the country was covered with splendid forests. We seemed to think that there could be no end to this wealth. We have dug the richest of our minerals, and because we were so prodigal, we allowed millions in wealth to run to waste. For years we threw away things in our manufacturing enterprises, and industries that were more valuable than the things produced and retained. We have corrected this in many instances, finding that by-product were immensely valuable. We have sent our productions abroad and our natural raw material to be manufactured into finished products—sending and bringing them into foreign bottoms at a cost of hundreds of millions. We attempt, as individuals, to emulate the living scale of our more opulent neighbors. We take a chance and make investments that it were folly to be considered by any one but one who can afford such luxury. Due to our neglect, we have permitted a wide range of profitable enterprises in foreign countries to best us in the markets of the world.

The country is awakened. It sees things with a clearer vision. We have now the opportunity to proceed along new and wiser lines. We may by careful action recoup much that we have lost. We may enlarge our industrial undertakings and shatter the ranks of unemployment which needlessly at present paralyzes the national industrial and business bodies. Every individual in the land may, and should, live more prudently; the farmer should more intensively farm his land and diversify the character of his crops; it is up to us to manufacture more carefully, to take advantage of new and wonderful opportunities, and to meet world competition with a wisdom and strength made confident and invincible through the enlightenment of a vigorous people reenlisted in the army of prudent and sane living.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SPANKING IS SALUTARY.

Ever since Delaware decided to take a hand and spank its erring children she hasn't had nearly so many misdemeanors. And now Pennsylvania is wondering if the punishment used by the state next door might not work pretty well in her own backyard. She doesn't know whether or not she should take her wrongdoers to the woodshed. Racketeers, highwaymen, and lesser lights in the underworld have been getting rather bold lately. Somehow being locked up for awhile doesn't seem to bother them. "Doing a stretch" is part of the game. And a good many people think that an old-fashioned threshing might be effective. Physical humiliation, before one's fellows, is something that takes the braggadocio out of the most hardened crook. And a beginner, who is just starting his apprenticeship, would probably decide that the game was off. No small boy gets any pleasure out of going to the woodshed, under the compelling influence of a father's hand, while all the neighborhood urchins grin mischievously from the alley. No matter how brave he might have been in climbing a tree and stealing forbidden apples, his pride crumbles in the dust when the hair brush or hickory limb enters the picture. If he had merely been sent to bed without his supper he could have posed as a hero.—Little Falls Transcript.

"Sippy Diet" in Treating Ills.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"Why does the stomach not digest itself?" This question is frequently asked of medical students.

So long as the stomach is in good health and receives the proper nourishment, it functions as the organ of digestion. It will digest meat and other substances placed in its cavity, but never the stomach itself.

Where there occurs a change in the lining of the stomach, the stomach may digest itself. The part digested is the part which is injured. The injury may be due to infection, lowered body health, and various other factors difficult to explain.

Ulcer of the stomach is a condition really due to digestion of a part of the stomach wall. The portion involved is attacked by the juices of the stomach and a small punched out area is actually digested.

This unusual performance on the part of the stomach is seen only in disease. It may continue until there is a perforation of the wall of the stomach, or it may spread lengthwise.

The first condition, in which perforation occurs, is spoken of as rupture of the gastric ulcer. This requires immediate operation. The second condition usually becomes chronic and very often can be completely cured by correct diet.

In most cases of stomach ulcer, or "gastric ulcer," as the doctors call it, the taking of food causes pain. The pain is located in the portion of the abdomen just below the ribs. It is promptly relieved by a stomach wash, by vomiting, or by the taking of an alkali. Bicarbonate of soda is commonly used because its marked alkalinity overcomes acidity and gives immediate relief of pain.

Cold and wet, worry, exhaustion, lack of care in diet, any one of these may bring on a sudden attack. Continuous neglect often leads to chronic pain, frequent hemorrhages from the stomach, and anemia. The victim loses a great deal of weight and becomes markedly anemic and quite emaciated.

One of the effective non-surgical treatments of this condition is the so-called "Sippy diet." This treatment aims to prevent the digestive action of the gastric juice of the stomach upon the ulcerated surface by shielding it from the juice. By feeding the patient small amounts of easily digested food at hourly intervals, and giving alkalies, the ulcer is less exposed to the strong juice.

Gastric ulcer is a condition requiring the utmost care in the feeding. Your doctor will outline the diet and you must strictly adhere to it.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

Q. R. S. Q—Is it injurious to take molasses every day? I have heard that molasses contains sulphur dioxide. Would this prove harmful to the stomach?

A—It would not be wise to eat too much molasses. Every food substance should be taken in moderation. Excessive sugar is harmful to the system. Used in moderation there is no reason why it should prove injurious unless there is some condition or disturbance which is aggravated by its use.

* * *

O. M. G. Q—Is there a cure for gall bladder trouble without having to resort to operation? What other treatment can be employed?

A—There are cases where careful diet and general care will bring about results. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MRS. W. J. Y. Q—What causes a baby to hold its breath? Would this be liable to cause death?

A—This is usually due to temper or a tantrum. Pay no attention to it and the baby will soon learn that there is nothing to be gained by his performance. No.

* * *

A READER. Q—What do you advise for falling hair?

A—Brush the hair daily and use a good tonic. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

* * *

J. E. S. Q—What can be done for wrinkles? They are under my eyes and since I am only nineteen they worry me.

A—Gentle massage, using the tips of the fingers, and a good cold cream or cocoa butter should eradicate these blemishes. In some cases wrinkles in this location are due to the formation of the face.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Zeppelin as a Fighter.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most extraordinary and impressive of man's mighty toys in the field of transportation is the dirigible balloon. Before the war I used to see these huge sausage-shaped balloons floating, ploughing as if without effort, through the air above Berlin. The people thought of them as sources of recreation, as possibly valuable instruments of transport. But few, not even Count Zeppelin himself, seem to have given very serious consideration to the military value of Zeppelins, and to their use as important factors in national defense. The cost of Zeppelin travel then, as it remains today, was so great as to be within reach only of the wealthy. Zeppelin travel was not an accepted mode of transportation. It was still an unrealized dream, economically, to be realized only in some future, believed not exceedingly remote.

When the Great war broke, the German people waxed enthusiastic over their Zeppelins. Count Zeppelin became a national hero, and was greeted with acclaim wherever he traveled throughout Germany. While the German war ministry was uncertain as to the potential value of the Zeppelin in war, it encouraged the enthusiastic faith in them voiced by the people. Although it had been forbidden by the peace conference at The Hague in 1899 to "drop explosives from the sky to injure combatants on the earth," no German doubted that the Zeppelin would be used to bomb enemy cities. The popular ideas regarding the destructiveness of the Zeppelin were absurdly exaggerated. Many people believed that a single huge bomb, dropped from a Zeppelin, might destroy an entire enemy city. Two facts were not taken into account—the enormous amount of explosives necessary to blow up a moderate area, and the comparatively small amount of explosives a Zeppelin could carry.

The history of the Zeppelins in the World war affords an impressive illustration of the mighty effort put forward by Germany to win the war. In spite of the excited and boastful talk about the Zeppelins, Germany had at the beginning of the war only eight! Two of these were commercial, the other six belonged to the army. So determined were the German people and the high military command to exploit the Zeppelin to the fullest extent, that during the war the number of Zeppelins launched at Friedrichshafen was the impressive total of eighty-eight!

The achievements of the Zeppelins at first were far from impressive. Nevertheless Count Zeppelin said in 1915: "The future of the war in the air depends upon the technical development of the Zeppelin as a effective offensive weapon, although their importance for scouting purposes was fully demonstrated. On one occasion, a fleet of six Zeppelins was lost, five being blown by a storm on the coast of France and one sent to earth, a virtual ruin, in Thuringia. But it is to be remembered that before the battle of Jutland, the LZ-11, on the night of May 31-June 1, 1916, brought the message to the German fleet that the British fleet was being mobilized. The significance of the Zeppelin is well described in Margaret Goldsmith's biography of Count Zeppelin.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Vacancy in an Ohio Electoral College.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Legal provision is very carefully made against the failure of a presidential elector to appear at the appointed time and cast his ballot. On the day next preceding that on which the vote of the college is to be taken, all the electors are required to report their presence to the governor, and if by 9 o'clock on the next day an absence is still reported, the other electors in the presence of the governor must elect a person to fill the vacancy.

Only death or incapacity to perform the duty can be presumed to cause such a vacancy, and so far as is known death has but once caused such a vacancy in the Ohio electoral college. That was in 1868. David Tod, then an ex-governor, had been elected as one of the two electors-at-large. The electors met in the office of Governor R. B. Hayes to cast their votes on December 1, but thirteen days before that date, Governor Tod had passed away.

Of course, there was a vacancy to be filled, and it was presumed it was filled, though the records do not show who was elected. The college appointed Stanley Matthews, E. F. Schneider and Frederick Kinsman a committee to prepare a suitable memorial and it also arranged a meeting to be held in the evening in Governor Hayes' office to consider its report. Governor Hayes presided, Judge James L. Bates and General George B. Wright were vice presidents. The Rev. A. G. Byers was chaplain, and Morton Brazee and W. R. Thrall, secretaries. Samuel Galloway, who was a colleague with Governor Tod in the college, was asked to deliver the oration of the occasion.

The Columbus congressional district was represented in that college by General Charles C. Walcutt, afterward for a number of terms the mayor of Columbus. That college of electors cast their vote for Ulysses S. Grant for president and for Schuyler Colfax for vice president.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, April 11—I'm fairly handy around the house so long as they don't get me up on step-ladders. Even then I'm not so bad if I don't look down. But if I look down everything begins to whirl, and the next thing I know they are asking me how I feel and fanning me.

It started several weeks ago when somebody hung a picture facing my chair in the living room. From the start it looked out of kilter and every time they tried to fix it it got worse. I'm not so all-fired artistic, but a picture hung cock-eyed annoys me.

This morning I could stand it no longer and, pushing back my chair after breakfast, asked for the stepladder. My wife intimated that as the picture was somewhat valuable it might be well to call in a professional hanger. "And pay him five dollars for something I can do in two minutes." I snapped.

She replied "All right, Stepple Jack," and flounced out. Any time she acts that way my dander is up. So I had the stepladder brought. It is one of those white enameled affairs that folds up into a kitchen chair. It's so tricky I expect Joe Cook could top a turn on it.

A very patient servant unhooked and unwound it and ventured: "I'll hold it steady for you." I replied coldly that I guessed I could hang a picture without calling out the militia. My wife—she would—passed through the room just then to sneer: "Doing it without a net."

It shows what I have to put up with. I haven't even the run of my home. Sometimes I think I will just quietly disappear, and get away from it all—vanish in the jungles and get all bit up by leopards and stung by scorpions. Hooked by a rhinocerous wouldn't be bad either.

Anyway when the room was cleared I shook the stepladder to see if it was all buttoned up properly, pushed it over near the canvas and began to climb. I tried to reach the picture from the fourth step, but could just touch it so it swung over to one side.

* * *

Then I had to get down and move the stepladder nearer. Stick around, there'll be action later. On the fifth step I was able to touch it again and the blamed thing swung clear back the other side. I made up my mind I wasn't going to be running up and down stepladders playing tag with pictures all day so I got my big dictionary and placed it on the top step. With that I could touch the ceiling. Are you following?

* * *

Well, here we go! Nobody skipped more gracefully up to the stop of a ladder than I. Somewhere I read that those affected by height could master it by never looking down and concentrating on some incident that happened long ago. That was dandy, but the only thing I could think of in the long ago was the time I fell out of the haymow and lit on a hay rake. That was the day they carried me home on Mrs. Heisner's shutter. Mrs. Heisner's grandson, Harry Maxon, brought two of my teeth later—all magnified in a bottle of water.

* * *

Anyway I reached the last step of the ladder with no more giddiness than one might have in one of those swooping dips of the Mauretania. I put one foot on the dictionary, and it seemed firm enough. But right here I want to warn the world never trust a dictionary on top of a stepladder. When I put my entire weight upon it something happened. It just sort of skidded out flat—bla-a-a, like that. As the drowning man grabs for a straw I grabbed for the picture. It held for a little while. Then I looked down and everything let go!

* * *

In the whirling confusion I recall hearing the shatter of glass, the upturning of the stepladder and a distinctly sudden grunt. And far away the barking of dogs. The door flew open and my wife came in. "I suppose," she said, "you are completely satisfied." I got up as dignified as possible under the circumstances, shook the glass out of my hair, drew myself up proudly and announced with becoming hauteur: "If you have anything to say to me say it later. I am tired of being an object of ridicule."

* * *

"I have nothing to say," she replied. But as I turned into the doorway of my workshop I added: "Except that rip in your trousers is a lulu!"—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Basque Country.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

As every one knows, the Basques inhabit the Pyrenees. Some live on its French side of the border, some on the Spanish. There are hundreds of thousands of them with perhaps a hundred thousand more in South America.

No one knows where the Basques originally came from. Their language is different from that of their neighbors, and the curious racial traits have been the source of much speculation and theorizing on the part of scientists, anthropologists and ethnologists.

The Basques are a simple, sturdy people. Their houses are old and built to resist hundreds of years of every conceivable sort of weather. Most of them are built of stone which is limed annually and usually trimmed in maroon.

Unlike most other peoples, the Basques have disdained city life. Stubbornly they have clung to their traditions and cultivated their old farms or, living near the sea, their fisheries. Some of the best whale fishermen in the world are Basques. They esetablished the cod fisheries off Newfoundland and they played vital roles in the colonization of the New world.

There are few castes among the Basques. They are proud of themselves and of their race. They feel that just to be one of them is to be both a democrat and an aristocrat.

They present a queer picture, these peasants working among the lovely surroundings of the Pyrenees, tilling their soil with old-fashioned implements, tending their flocks of sheep on the rocky altitudes of their mountains, casting their nets into the sea.

Implacable as the mountains, strong as the sea, they are a race apart. For hundreds of years they have retained the integrity of their mysterious origin. Paris on the north and gay Madrid on the south hold no allure for the Basques.

Modernity likewise does not attract them. They are content to live like their forefathers—in solitude and peace in their mountains.

Dinner Stories.

"You will have some very interesting things to talk about when you get back home."

"I have progressed," said Senator Sorghum, "beyond the point where a politician depends on his own conversation. I have succeeded in making myself the chief topic of discussion."

"The desire must be gratified in moderation. History has always shown that true greatness is more talked about than talking."

LOSE IN FIGHT FOR NEW TRIAL

Crawford County Judge Overrules Motion in Ralls Case.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, April 11—Walter and Blanton Ralls, convicted slayers of Sheriff George Davenport, went a step nearer the electric chair Friday afternoon when Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl overruled motions for new trials for the two men, sought by defense counsel on the grounds of newly-discovered evidence.

Judge Ahl handed down the ruling after three hours had been devoted to arguments of opposing counsel and the taking of testimony of five witnesses.

At the same time Judge Ahl ruled that a full bill of exceptions in the Walter Ralls case be sent with a transcript of the case when the case is reviewed in the court of appeals, in response to a request by his attorney, Louis Kreiter. A transcript of evidence only will be furnished in the Blanton Ralls case not to include the transcript of the selection of the jury for the reason that all peremptory challenges were not exercised.

Talks to Men

Before making his ruling in regard to furnishing transcripts of the two cases to be used when they are reviewed by the court of appeals, Judge Ahl questioned both defendants, asking them if it was their wish that their cases be carried to the higher court to which they both replied in the affirmative. Walter Ralls explained that he considered that his trial had been fair with the exception of the selection of the jury which he explained, "was selected after too much questioning had been necessary to make the jurors state that they could lay aside their opinions."

The convicted slayers will probably be removed to Columbus early next week to wait execution July 23 in the event that the action of the local court is sustained by the court of appeals, in which court the two cases will be filed shortly.

YEGGS SLUG PATRON, ROB BANK OF $5,000

Toledo Employes Forced into Vault by Pair of Gunmen.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., April 11—Slugging a customer, two robbers held up the branch bank of the Security Home Trust company here today and escaped with more than $5,000.

A third robber waited in an automobile, parked nearby, for the escape.

For Edward W. Heintschel, branch manager and Luella Hurren, bookkeeper, it was the second holdup in four months. Four thugs threatened them December 13, 1930, escaping with $7,500.

Heintschel and Miss Hurren were in the bank this morning when the robbers entered. Twenty minutes previously a consignment of money had been delivered to the bank.

After going through the cages, stuffing currency into their pockets the bandits forced the bank employes into the vault.

Just then Morris Krauss entered to get change. Apparently irritated by his appearance, one of the bandits struck him twice in the back and forced him into the vault also. He was not hurt badly.

WORKS ON BIRTHDAY

Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes Celebrates Sixty-Ninth Anniversary

By United Press

WASHINGTON, April 11—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes observed his birthday today in a manner befitting his 69 active years in public life. He will spend the day, which beckons thousands to the countryside, closeted with his eight associate justices, whipping into shape a batch of complicated court opinions to be handed down Monday noon.

His strict attention to duty is attributed chiefly to his inability to leave work undone. And the supreme court is a busy place just now.

Marion Women Return From State Federation Convention

MARION club women are returning today from a full four-days of conventioning at Youngstown at the annual meeting of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs.

Yesterday morning, in the closing sessions of the convention, the federation adopted a resolution reaffirming the belief that prohibition is the most effective means of curbing the liquor traffic, and went on record as protesting the sale of salacious literature

Last evening, the convention closed, but many of the delegates stayed over for informal chats, expecting to return home today or Sunday.

Mrs. W. N. Harder of Marion, chairman of fine arts in the general federation, spoke to the convention Thursday, decrying the lack of art appreciation by the public. She contrasted the indifference of the masses in America to art with the appreciation shown by people of European countries.

Reports of the convention will be made by delegates at meetings of their clubs in the next two weeks

Spring

THE "warm spell" this week put an urge into most folks to turn things topsy turvey, even to a point of discarding the old galoshes. But the spring rain which wasn't a split second behind the fair weather took it out of them One fairly groans for the ability to juggle words but the best they can rate is a flock of ohs and ahs in appreciation of nature at this season of the year About the best thing yet about the gladsome springtime, aside from the music of the babbling brooks and the frog concerts, is the fields of wobbly-legged lambkins and those energetic little pigs whose squeals are still far removed from the raucous noise which their elders make It's a little early for those little plush chickens but it won't be long now, and then, if one would choose to be mercenary from a gustatory standpoint, it's but a step to that young spring chicken on the platter

"Bunnets"

THIS writer was completely floored the other day when snooping around a millinery store to find "bunnets" which are all that literally Flowers are not so startling but when the lady in waiting informs you that the bustle effect is fashioned of loop after loop of ribbon, you're just lucky to get a second gasp Already the fairer ones are beginning to warm up to them so by mid-season we may be trained to those lace creations which were the last word of the mauve decade Wouldn't it be funny, if again we should see the milliner plying her needle in a mad race to finish an all-together handmade hat? And what an inning for those home-grown hats, which in their day were original to say the least.

Movie Children

IT makes all the difference in the world whose youngster is making the noise at the movie you finds out when they are members of the same party. The fours in front of us would, I am quite sure, have been much more comfortable (although you never could have guessed it by their actions) if we had left the little dear at home but to us, she was of far more interest than the picture. Now go on and say it, "Why didn't you stay at home with her then?" Well, just the same reason that 999 others don't do it, we didn't want to

PRESENT PROGRAM

Presbyterian Sunday School Class Meets at Dennig Home

A program of music was enjoyed by the Anna T. Waters class of First Presbyterian church at a meeting last evening with Miss Anna Dennig of Bellefontaine avenue. Mrs. G. C. Starner was music chairman for the meetings

Hostess were Mrs. J. L. Hoover, Mrs. Starner, Mrs. E. F. Stuckey, Mrs. H. C. Thompson, Mrs Catherine Thompson, Mrs. J. C. Turner, Mrs. Arthur McCausland and Miss Emma Thompson. Mrs. McCausland led the devotions.

Mrs. R. G. Williamson and Mrs E W. Warwick gave several vocal solos and Mrs. D. W. Yambert played two piano selections. Mrs. C Wogan contributed a piano solo Mrs. Starner played her own accompaniment to several songs, following which Mrs Williamson gave a reading. Little Miss Pauline Stuckey gave a piano recital number to which she had written the words.

It was decided to have a Cheer club within the class for those having birthdays each month Plans were made for a bake sale in the near future at an uptown store Refreshments were served by the hostesses. Mrs. Hoover will entertain May 8 at her home on South Main street.

...Uncle was not only useful in... directly to the police, but was also, for political reasons, under the protection of some powerful, "higher-up," for Uncle swung a big vote.

Williams H. William, like the chief of police, was of opinion that if anybody in America knew anything at all about the gang who had got away with the St. Clair diamond, it would sooner or later, be my friend "Uncle."

For not only was he a clearing-house for all the information of crookdom, but was also the personal friend of all the biggest crooks.

Naturally it would be idiotic to walk into Uncle's speak-easy and simply say to him:

"Who was it kidnaped St. Clair's kid, and touched him for the big sparkler?"

Uncle would merely regard the speaker with cold suspicion, and ask him what he was talking about.

No, our plan, as sketched out by Williams H. William, was that he and his wife should impinge most gradually upon the consciousness of Uncle, in the role of obviously very wealthy and successful crooks, that they should very gradually cultivate him, and that after weeks and months—and, if necessary, a year—they should attain to intimacy, and win his approval and confidence.

Not, of course, in any hope that they would be able to induce him to betray any secrets, or intentionally to tell us anything detrimental to the interests of those who had trusted him.

But there was, according to William, a chance that he might be hoodwinked into indiscretion, for, like many other great men, Uncle had a weakness. He was no drunkard and indeed he rarely drank. But when he did, he drank a good deal; and, although he never became intoxicated, he would, on these occasions, become mellow, reminiscent and communicative.

Even so, a single indiscreet question or remark would suffice to shut him up like an oyster.

On the other hand, a friend and confidant who talked wisely and well, gently leading the conversation in the required direction might learn a lot in the course of gossip—provided he betrayed no interest in what he heard, and contrived to convey the impression that all this was no news to him, and that he and Uncle were equally well informed upon the subject.

Naturally, Uncle was not our only hope, nor he and the clientele of his speak-easy our only sources of information on the subject of the past and current history of the leading crooks whose more particular line of business was blackmail and kidnaping for ransom.

Not only did we frequent every likely speakeasy, but, for a time, William and I actually opened and ran one of our own, in the hope that we might make it the rendezvous of the type of people with whom we wished to hold enlightening converse.

This venture came to an abrupt end, however, for one day the representative of a big beer baron, rival to him who supplied us with our liquor, burst into our saloon and sought sorrow.

"Say," bawled our visitor, "which of you guys runs this joint?"

"I do," admitted William, suppressing a hiccup. "Pleased to meet you."

"Well, look at here. You won't be pleased next time, if you go on selling any more north side stuff, see? Beginning tomorrow you'll get your daily dollop of our dope—and you'll cash up to me every Sunday morning. Get me?"

"I'm fixed to pay dollars on Saturdays..." replied William... "But I could pay in lead, Sundays, if you must come," he added.

The man's right hand moved like lightning, there was a flash of blued steel from his hip-pocket, and a shattering bang.

But the bang came from William, and the west side beer baron's representative staggering back with a broken arm as an automatic pistol fell from his hand.

"Don't stoop for it, brother," advised William, "and go while the going's good."

Nursing his arm, the man staggered to the door, and, as he shouldered it open, turned and faced us.

"Make yer wills, both of ye," he growled, and was gone.

"I've been expecting just that," observed William. "Joint-keeping's a mug's game. Your own brewery shoots you up if you switch over to another, and the other shoots you up if you don't."

He then rang up our own beer baron's office to mention the matter, and received a reply to the effect that in any case, the usual amount of beer would be delivered every Monday, and the usual sum of money collected every Saturday.

On William pointing out that it was derogatory and insulting to the beer baron that his preserves should be poached upon in this shameless way, that gentleman or his representative did, however, add that, in the interests of sport and fair play, he would send Slipper McGinty round on Sunday morning, with instructions to join William and myself behind the bar and shoot it out with the west side representative and his friends when they came to collect.

This—provided we won the battle—might teach Big Bill Morrisy not to butt-in with his beer where he didn't belong.

However, as neither our heart nor our resources were really in the beer business, and we were not out for wealth, notoriety, or trouble, we closed down and quit. We preferred to do wrong by stealth, and would have blushed to find it fame.

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

• • •

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. It is still April but it wasn't raining when I opened the window to let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and when I had got into my short britches and went down and was on my way to the barn I was thinking that I would go over to the school and help Banty's father paint the schoolhouse but Banty didn't want to when he came. He said he knew lots better things to do than to watch his father paint so when the whole bunch had came we made it up that we would go out to the pasture and make us some whistles and go over to Mud Turkle pond in the woods and get some slippery ellum and see if dewberries and blackberries were in blossom, and maybe go swimmnig. So when I got done milking and went in the house and found Youniss and Maggie and Feeble I had to give up the going swimming part because I knowed they would want to go with us, and they did.

I felt kinda sorry leaving the cows in the barn whilst we went to the pasture without them. A cow don't have much fun standing in one place all winter like they do eating sutff and turning it into milk for people. But we went out anyhow and instead of going to the gate we crawled under where the creek comes out and walked along the bank looking for mushrats or snakes or anything we could find, and the sun was shining and the dogs were chasing around and having a good time, and when we had got some slippery ellum we climb over the other fence to go to the pond, and a hollow tree had fell over and was laying on a high place, and Frenchy who knows all about trapping looked at the open end of it till he found a hair sticking to the tree, and we all looked at it and said it was rabbit hair, and the dogs were barking and raising sand and Frenchy said he would crawl in and pull it out, but he couldn't so we let Banty, who is smaller, and he said to pull him out by the feet when he hollered, and he pulled his cap over his eyes to keep the rotten wood out and crawled in, and pretty soon we heard him make a noise like he was choking and I grabbed his ankles and pulled him out, and pulled out the most smell with him that I ever smelled, and he was choking and strangling, because it was a skunk that was in the tree, and they all run away from him but me, but I got hold of the edge of his coat and pulled him toardst the pond, and he stumbled into it and ducked himself and ducked himself till he could see. Then the rest of us left him and went and got dead branches and piled around the open end of the log and set them afire, and we stayed around all day whilst the tree burnt, but the skunk never did come out.

Banty went home [illegible] could, and we [illegible] for him [illegible] Jubilee.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Boys Greet the "Surprise" Room.

IF any thought of reward had entered into my planning of the "surprise" room for Dicky's older nephews, I would have had it "pressed down and running over," in the face of Hank and Bill as they caught their first glimpse of the large guest room which we had transformed into a combination study-bed chamber for them.

For a few seconds they said nothing, simply stood in the doorway with nothing moving but their eyes, which roved from window seat to couches, to bookshelves, and finally focused upon the big basket of gorgeous orange and yellow lilies upon the table.

"Gee!" Hank muttered, but Bill turned to me.

"It's the swellest room I ever saw," he said. "D'ye mean it's really for us?"

There was something in his voice which gave me a choky little feeling, made my voice a bit husky when I answered him.

"Yes, Bill, it's all yours and Hank's. I'm so glad you like it."

"Like it!" His exclamation was eloquent. "And flowers 'n' everything. It's—it's—like a party."

"That's what I wanted it to be like the first time you ever saw it," I said. "Flowers will probably be in your way when you get settled in the room——"

"Yes, that's so," Hank said, then started violently and turned wrathfully upon his brother.

"Say! What's the big——" he began, then broke off with an abrupt "Oh!" I knew as well as if I had seen the little side play that Bill had administered a kick or a nudge, but I went on as if Hank had not interrupted me.

"But I wanted it to look especially nice when you first came in, so I put them here. Come and look at your window seat."

They followed me to the window, and stood for a second looking it over, then as if with one accord they looked at me doubtfully.

"Yes, you can put your feet on that covering," I said with a laugh which Dicky echoed as the boys scrambled to the seat, adjusted pillows behind their heads, and with knees drawn up and hands clasped over them, looked out over the view which I love so well, of meadow and woodland dipping to the distant ocean.

"Gee! you can see the ocean from here," Hank exclaimed, but Bill looked at me.

"It's all so wonderful, Aunt Madge," he said softly. "Thank you so much."

Uncle Dicky Is Modest

"I'll tell the world we've got something to thank you for," Hank seconded exuberantly. "Gee, kid! d'ye remember the pictures of his room the million-dollar kid had? This has it beaten a mile. This looks like a college suite. I'll bet old Harkness Memorial itself has nothing on this."

"Harkness Memorial is since my time," Dicky drawled, "but allowing for a slight bias, Hank, you may be right."

His eyes were twinkling and I was afraid the boys might see his amusement.

"It is your Uncle Dicky who should be thanked for the room," I interposed hastily.

"Don't you believe her, boys," my husband disclaimed emphatically. "All I did was to write a check or two and hold down the eternal feminine tendency for frills and ruffles. The whole idea was hers just as every good thought around these diggins is."

He tossed a kiss to me and I forgave him albeit with a little moue for his libelous utterance concerning frills and ruffles. For it had been my guiding thought in planning the room that no hint of feminine taste should appear in it. The flowers had been my sole lapse from my plan of having the room one which boys would like and in which they would feel thoroughly comfortable.

"At any rate you won't find a frill or a ruffle anywhere around," I told them, laughing. "Now we'll leave you to unpack and put away your things to suit yourselves. Here is your closet"—I threw open the door—"the low shelves are for your shoes and your beds are under these coverlets." I lifted one up displaying the linen and pillows beneath. "When you go to bed, just drape these coverlets over the nearest chairs and your beds are ready for you. Then any other time you can lounge on the beds without being afraid of your shoes soiling things."

"Oh, boy!" Hank changed from "Gee," which was a relief. "We've got fun here, I don't think."

I started from the door, but Junior caught at my hand frantically.

"Aren't you going to show them the baby?" His voice was almost a wail.

"But the baby's asleep, dear," I said.

"No, she isn't," he countered triumphantly. "We heard Aunt Katherine talking to her when we came by the door. She's awake all right."

"Then we'll take the boys to see her right away," I promised, answering the pleading in my small son's eyes and ignoring the half bored half frightened expression in the eyes of his older cousins.

THE Big Four serves its communities on a steel highway built and maintained by the railroad.

This means that it has invested for every mile of railroad line about sixty thousand dollars, including land, grading, ballast, ties, tracks, etc.

To keep this in proper condition to carry trains with speed and safety requires an annual expense for maintenance of about five thousand dollars per year per mile of railroad.

Here is a great steel highway that adds value to every piece of property lying near it. It not only costs the taxpayer not a penny, but is an important source of tax revenue to the counties, townships and other divisions of government.
